

Doukhobors Quit Island

Believed Returning to Kootenays;
Property at Hilliers for Sale

The Vancouver Island Doukhobor colony at Hilliers, near Qualicum, is advertising its property for sale and members are believed planning to head back to the Kootenay district in the interior.

It was learned today the colony, established in 1946 in a reform movement by a portion of the Sons of Freedom sect, is now only populated by two or three families, comprising about 15 people. About 30 Doukhobors, who arrived at the colony during October, have left.

In recent years there has been a population in the colony of 60 to 70.

A sign advertising the 40 to 50 acres for sale has been posted in the local post office.

The colony was established by Doukhobors headed by Michael (The Archangel) Veregin, who was anxious to set up an orthodox community.

But his death nearly two years ago left the colony without effective leadership. The settlement's spirit went steadily downward until now, when his followers have apparently decided to abandon the colony.

Poor land, lacking irrigation, has plagued the Doukhobors' efforts to grow abundant crops. This also has contributed to their troubles.

"The Archangel" and his followers broke away from the radical group in their sect in the Kootenay district just after the Second World War, and settled at Hilliers.

The colony was well behaved, and Michael was instrumental in setting up a school for children in the colony. The school used the regular provincial education department curriculum—a radical departure from practices of the rest of the Doukhobors.

There were outbreaks of violence at Hilliers in 1948, but police did not blame the Hilliers Doukhobors. They were inclined to accuse enemies of the Hilliers colony—other Doukhobors who committed the acts in an effort to make trouble for Michael and his new colony.

A school and community hall were destroyed by fire, and the Hilliers sect's own kitchen and store were burned.

U.S. SENATOR SAYS CANADA 'ISOLATIONIST'

Criticizes
War Effort

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 4 (CP)—Senator Paul Douglas (Dem., Illinois) has criticized what he called the failure of several United Nations countries to pull their weight in the Korean War.

He told a club meeting here that Australia, New Zealand and Canada are not carrying their share of the fighting. He recommended that a limited offensive be launched, and said many more troops are needed for such an operation.

Australia and New Zealand, he said, are "extremely isolationist." Canada, he said today when asked to amplify his reference, "tends to be isolationist."

In his speech Wednesday night, Douglas suggested that Canadians "measure their contribution in Korea in relation to the size and population" of their country.

He said Australia and New Zealand have only two battalions of troops between them on the Korean front.

Canada has a full infantry brigade in the 1st Commonwealth division, as well as three destroyers with U.N. naval forces and a squadron of transport planes in the Pacific airlift to Korea. All were committed early in the war.

May Visit B.C.

Crown Prince Akihito of Japan, shown in court ceremonial dress, will probably visit Canada as a state guest next spring, it was learned today by the Canadian Press. The visit will be during the 18-year-old heir presumptive's voyage to London to attend the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. He is scheduled to leave in March by steamship arriving at Vancouver. C.P.R. officials are prepared to place a private car at his disposal for the trip across the Dominion. Toronto and Ottawa certainly would be touched by the prince's party, which would then proceed to New York for embarkation on a trans-Atlantic liner.

New Meeting Scheduled in Rail Dispute

MONTREAL, Dec. 4 (CP)—The railways announced today their acceptance of an invitation to meet the unions here next Wednesday to discuss further their dispute over a pay raise for 144,000 non-operating railway workers.

The unions, consisting of 15 international and two national brotherhoods, already have announced they will attend the meeting, proposed by Labor Minister Gregg.

The unions last Saturday announced their rejection of the majority report of a conciliation board recommending a 16-cent-an-hour pay raise for the non-operating employees—those who don't actually run the trains. The unions sought 45 cents.

The railways accepted the 16-cent recommendation and immediately applied to the board of transport commissioners for a general freight rate increase to recoup part of the added cost to pay their bills.

Swiss Worried Over Fate of Climbers

NEW DELHI, Dec. 4 (AP)—Swiss legation officials today began to show signs of great concern over the prolonged delay in news of the outcome of the Swiss Everest expedition. One commented: "We are not making a joke over the fact we cannot tell you anything this time."

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

CHRISTMAS TREES

IF I NEEDED a reminder that Christmas is just around the corner—and what Victorian doesn't, in the face of the spring-like weather we have been enjoying?—I got it while visiting in the Columbia Valley recently. For there I saw hundreds of thousands of Christmas trees being shipped to distant points in readiness for the season.

And although in that part of the country the mountain sides are clothed with firs, you are soon disillusioned of the idea that anyone can go out and cut down Christmas trees in commercial quantities at any spot they might choose. Far from it!

ON FARM LOTS

CUTTING IS LIMITED to privately-owned farm lots, as I learned from a charming woman who lives just outside Edgewater, in the Lake Windermere district, which is the centre of this flourishing industry. She owns just such a lot, and with her two daughters had been cutting for several weeks, and expected to be cutting for another few weeks to meet the demand.

Nor is it just a question of going out and chopping down a small tree at the base, and letting it go at that. As with everything else there is a technique to it, and the conservationist, such as she, sees to it that the tree is cut so that several branches are left at the bottom, thus affording the tree a chance to grow again into a marketable commodity within a few years.

PROFITABLE VENTURE

THE RAISING AND CUTTING of Christmas trees is evidently a profitable sideline for the farmers in that part of the world, as they are paid up to a dollar a tree, according to size, and, except at cutting time, there is no care or labor entailed.

I watched the trees being piled on a truck and transported to the little station at Atholmer, the centre from which they are dispatched to distant points. At Atholmer, men, women, and youngsters were busily engaged in tying the trees closely until they resembled shaggy poles, then assembling them by sizes into bundles for shipment. I marvelled that, after so much handling and compression, they ever again resumed their natural appearance, but was assured that they suffered nothing in the process.

BUMPER HARVEST

IF YOU HAVE never seen Christmas trees thus processed and ready for shipment you cannot imagine the great number that make up a carload. I gazed when my Atholmer informant told me that the harvest this year, while exceptionally good, is not expected quite to reach the record shipments of a few years ago, when, from that little station on the Kootenay Central Railway, 100 carloads were shipped.

A few of the carloads are sent to prairie and other Canadian points, but the great majority are consigned to the southern United States. This bears out what the statisticians of the Federal Trade and Commerce Department announced from Ottawa recently—that the shipment of Canadian Christmas trees to our neighbors to the south is becoming big business.

TWO MILLIONS

LAST YEAR, IT amounted to more than $2,000,000, which is not to be sneezed at. In other words, Canada supplied one-quarter of all the Christmas trees that deck American homes and stores during the festive season. In New York City two-thirds of the trees came from Canada, with Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit and Chicago in close running.

Of course, British Columbia does not supply the bulk of the U.S. Yule trees. Nova Scotia supplies the most, with New Brunswick next, followed by B.C., Ontario and Quebec. But when I saw what this export trade meant to the people of the Lake Windermere district, I fervently hoped that, for their sake, the advanced educationists and psychologists would not do to Christmas tree mythology what they have done to Santa Claus and other Yuletide symbols.

'I CAN HEAR A WOMAN'S VOICE'

Aged Wife's Jealousy Held Reason for Her Fall to Death

MANCHESTER, Eng., Dec. 4—(AP)—"I hear a woman's voice," the wife called from upstairs.

The husband called back: "No one, dear."

A few moments later he heard a thud. At the bottom of the stairs was his wife, dead.

At a coroner's inquest, the husband said she must have been hurrying down to see if there was another woman when she stumbled and fell.

The voice was that of a woman radio announcer.

Kitimat Officials Deny 'Deplorable' Working Conditions

VANCOUVER, Dec. 4 (CP)—Kitimat Constructors Wednesday denied union charges that living conditions for workmen at Kitimat are "deplorable."

Union stewards representing workers at Kitimat, 400 miles up-coast from Vancouver, Tuesday night called on the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council to investigate living conditions at the Aluminum Company of Canada smelter site.

J. A. Fass, Kitimat Constructors' personnel director, termed the union charge "most exaggerated."

He said extra beds were put in three rooms "and that made one or two people disgruntled, as they had a room to themselves before that."

South America's highest mountain, Aconcagua in Argentina, is 23,081 feet high.

TAFT MAY TAKE FIGHT TO SENATE

Ohioan Refuses Comment on Possible Action Against Durkin Appointment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft said in a telephone interview attempt would be made next month to prevent Senate confirmation of Martin P. Durkin as Secretary of Labor.

The Ohio Republican speaking from Cincinnati refused to comment on the varying interpretations placed by editorial writers and commentators on his denunciation of Durkin's selection for the cabinet.

He was told that many eastern newspapers had treated his blast at Durkin as the day's biggest news event; that they were interpreting it as a break in relations between Taft and President-elect Eisenhower, and that there was joy in the Democratic camp.

Taft's response was that everybody was welcome to draw conclusions from his statement that Eisenhower's choice of Durkin was both "incredible" and an "affront" to millions of union voters who supported the Republicans last November.

OPPOSES ACT

Durkin is a Democrat who voted for Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for president. He opposes the Taft-Hartley Act. Durkin was president of the American Federation of Labor Plumbers' Union when tapped for the cabinet.

Taft's failure in response to questions to say Durkin would be confirmed on schedule is circumstantial evidence, at least, that the senator will challenge him next month. That is his right. The constitution provides that cabinet officers shall be nominated by the president with the advice and consent of the Senate.

That is ample constitutional authority for any senator to request that Durkin's nomination be referred to the Senate labor and education committee for discussion or testimony as to his fitness for office. Taft is expected to be chairman of that committee in the 83rd Congress.

Taft may examine Durkin in committee. But Taft probably could not prevent his confirmation. Few Republican senators would follow him on that and few Democrats would vote against a fellow Democrat for a spot in a Republican cabinet.

Roks Roll Grenades Down Hill to Beat Back Reds

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 4 (UP)—Park-clad South Korean Infantrymen rolled hand grenades down the ice-crusted slopes of Pinpoint Hill today, smashing back three Chinese attacks against the key height on Sniper Ridge.

The Rok troops fought through a rain of potato-masher grenades to recapture Pinpoint Hill from the Reds Wednesday night. It was the 18th time they have retaken Pinpoint Hill since Oct. 14, when the battle of the Kumhwa Ridges began.

The Reds held the height less than a day, winning possession of it shortly after midnight Tuesday. Temperatures fell to a new low in the Sniper Ridge area of the central front, freezing the snow to a jagged dirty crust that slowed the movements of attacking Red infantrymen.

The Reds continued to pour infantry waves from their tunnels and caves of the vantage on the northern tip of sniper. But the Rok troops, again firmly entrenched on the crest, beat them off.

U.N. fighter-bombers ranged the white-covered battlefield again at dawn today with the lifting of the cloud cover over the Korean peninsula.

B-29 Superforts attacked during the night, dropping 150 tons of explosives on Communist troop and supply areas deep in North Korea.

One Superfort flight bombed troop barracks and supply stacks at Taeyung, only 30 miles from the Manchurian border. Other bombers blasted a seven-acre military headquarters area at Suncheon, north of Pyongyang.

Brown voiced the warning Wednesday at a meeting of the International Woodworkers of America and the operators in the Vancouver offices of the Labor Relations Board.

The jobs of 6,000 union members are at stake. The union was reported to have offered a six-month contract, with some pay changes, but the operators said they could not raise wages under any conditions.

The Labor Relations Board arranged another meeting for Monday afternoon after the union said it had no authority to accept last year's contract.

The policy committee of the union was expected to meet shortly to make a decision.

Truman Through, Next Move In Korea Up to Eisenhower

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Truman administration

apparently will make no further policy moves to solve the Korean situation. The next step, officials said today, will be up to President-elect Eisenhower.

Officials said it will be up to the incoming regime to make any fundamental changes such as prosecuting the war beyond its present limits or putting additional economic or military pressures on Communist China.

The Truman administration is said to feel no new policy moves are advisable before Eisenhower's inauguration, seven weeks away. Two reasons are advanced:

1. Any large undertaking could hardly be completed before Jan. 20, thus committing the new administration to deal with a program it may not approve.

2. The United Nations' fight in Korea is an Allied fight, requiring Allied co-operation in any policy development. Before agreeing to a new project, it is said, the U.N. Allies would want to know how the Eisenhower administration feels about it.

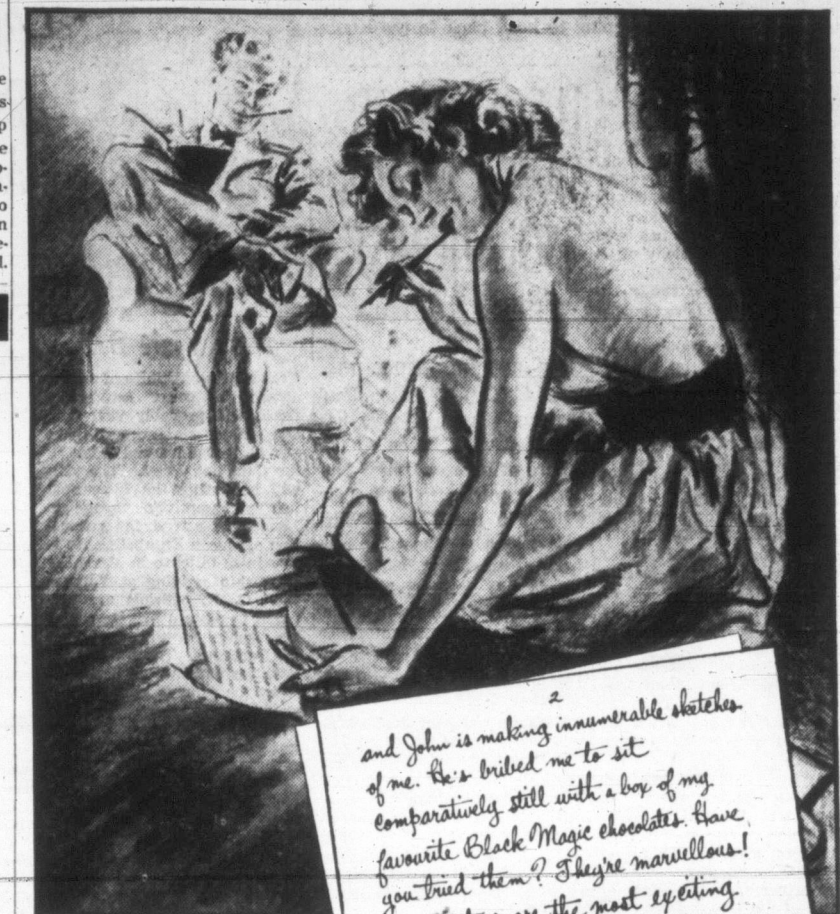

Korean issues are regarded by authorities here as topping the list of foreign policy problems prepared for study by John Foster Dulles, Eisenhower's secretary of state.

Fatal Fire Said Due to Gas Leak

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 4 (AP)—Firemen today blamed leaking propane gas for a raging fire that flashed through a frame dwelling and wiped out a family of seven.

Killed were Henry Tochman, 34, a bakery route salesman; his wife, Catherine, 32, and their five children.

SWEET SECRET . . .

Why do men who know choose Black Magic chocolates for the women they care about? There are two answers, really. One is that the centres are really wonderful—every woman adores them (3,000 people chose them as their favourites from hundreds of different chocolate centres). And the other reason is that the money you pay for them is being spent on the chocolates and not on elaborate packaging. The simple, but elegant black box which contains Black Magic, puts little on the price.

Tourists Need Liquor Outlets Inquiry Told

Sale on Trains, Planes, Ships Advocated; Stevens Visits Pubs

VANCOUVER, Dec. 4 (CP)—Sale of liquor by the glass on trains, airplanes and boats and at major passenger terminals was advocated Wednesday by Vancouver Tourist Association in a brief to the Liquor Inquiry Commission.

A KIKUYU TRIBESMAN says he saw Jomo (Burning Spear) Kenyatta administer the oath of the Mau Mau. The 33-year-old native, who begged that his name be withheld, was a prosecution witness Wednesday in the British Colonial government's case against Kenyatta and five other alleged leaders of the secret anti-white cult. Above, "Burning Spear" is pictured being taken to jail by native police in Nairobi, Kenya.

The brief said that more than 1,500,000 tourists visited B.C. in the last 12 months and suggested that for their convenience liquor, wine and beer should be made available in these places.

It added that B.C. liquor laws took top priority on a questionnaire handed to tourists asking "What do you like least about Vancouver?"

The V.T.A. brief called for a six-day week for B.C. Liquor Control Board stores and urged that a more informative term than "licensed premises" be used on beer parlors.

It recommended sale of liquor by the glass, wine by the glass, and beer by the bottle in conjunction with the service of food every day but Sunday.

Chairman Harry Stevens of the commission decided to see for himself what goes on in some of Vancouver's beer parlors.

He said at a commission hearing Wednesday that he and commission secretary E. W. C. Sharp toured four skid-road taverns last Saturday night, interviewing managers unofficially and observing conduct.

"I saw hundreds and hundreds of absolute drunks," Mr. Stevens said. "I saw men staggering in, slumping down in chairs and getting glasses piled up in front of them."

Mr. Stevens said with a grin that he did not invite one member of the commission to go with him—non-drinker Very Rev. Cecil Swanson.

Lloyds Lengthen Odds on Crowning

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Lloyds of London is twice as certain today as it was a few months ago that the coronation will take place as scheduled next June 2.

The famous insurance institution now is quoting a 7½ per cent rate on insurance against something happening to prevent the ceremony. Some time ago, some business firms paid as high as 15 per cent.

The insurance was taken out because many millions of pounds already invested in work connected with the coronation would be lost if anything—such as war or a death in the royal family—should cause postponement.

SID PAYS AL TRIBUTE

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (BUP)—The biggest single reason why the Chicago Black Hawks have rocketed from last to first place in the National Hockey League since the dark days of last season is a tall, spare goalie named Al Rollins, coach Sid Abel said today.

"He's been terrific," Abel said. "When we got him along with three other players in the deal that sent Harry Lumley to Toronto, we made one of the best moves in recent years."

Posthumous Award Made B.C. Boy for Bravery

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (CP)—each time lost his hold. He Posthumous award of its gold medal for bravery to Frank Baker, 12, of Burton, B.C., was announced today by the Royal Canadian Humane Association.

The 12th gold medal awarded by the association since its inception in 1894 went to Howkins, who lost his life in the Arrow Lakes at Burton on Oct. 13 in an attempt to rescue an 11-year-old playmate, William Baker, who also was drowned.

The exploit that cost Howkins his life was recounted in the award of the gold medal. Several boys were riding their bicycles on the Burton pier when young Baker's bike hit the edge of the wharf and he was thrown into the water 50 feet from shore.

DISREGARDED DANGER Regardless of his own chances Howkins jumped in and made his way to the struggling boy. A good swimmer, Howkins grabbed Baker several times but

PARTICULARLY CRUEL

Czech Spy Hanging Details Described

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 4 (UP)—The 11 former Czech Communist leaders executed Wednesday at Prague for espionage and treason probably died by a particularly cruel form of hanging.

Prague radio reported only that the 11 were hanged. But if the executions followed the method usually used at Prague's grim Pankrac prison, this is what happened:

The doomed men were accompanied by armed members of the S.N.B. (security police) wearing purple uniform tabs to show they were special execution guards, and by priests or ministers of their faiths. As eight of the 11 were Jews, a Rabbi probably walked with them as they took the last few paces of their lives.

Watching from a point a few yards away was a high official of the ministry of justice—to make sure the sentence was carried out. Each of the 11 was brought to a heavy post about eight feet high and one foot in diameter, firmly anchored in the ground. Next to each post was a small stool.

Before these posts each man had a chance to make his final plea—perhaps a repetition of the abject confession delivered in court, a defiant denial or an appeal to God.

Then his hands were trussed behind his back, and a wide leather belt was fastened around his waist. A hook on a rope that dangled from a groove atop the pole was secured to a ring in the leather belt. Then the prisoner was hoisted up until his toes were several feet above the floor.

At this point, a noose, also passed through the groove and fastened to the pole, was put around his neck.

At a signal from the officer in charge, the condemned man was dropped until the noose brought his neck sharply back. Before he could struggle, the executioner, standing on the stool, reached over and with a flat, stiff-fingered hand struck him behind an ear, breaking his neck.

New Health Measures Forecast in Commons

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (BUP)—Parliamentary debate on national health insurance hit the doldrums today, pending a statement from Health Minister Paul Martin on what changes the government intends to make in national health grants this year.

The national health grants, begun in 1948 for a five-year period, are to be continued according to the Throne Speech at the opening of the new session of parliament, "with certain changes."

Just what the changes are have not been announced, and the lack of an announcement has presented all parties in the Commons with an obstacle in their debates.

Reports have circulated in parliamentary corridors that the government intends to provide for free diagnostic and early treatment clinics as a prelude to the institution of national health insurance proper.

These reports gained support Wednesday in a speech delivered in the Commons by Martin's parliamentary assistant, Dr. E. A. McCusker (L., Regina). McCusker said he could not go into details of the government's program. The main policy statement must come from Martin himself.

He is now acting leader of the Canadian delegation at the United Nations General Assembly.

But McCusker, speaking on behalf of the government, said the goal was to have a national health program which would be more than merely insurance against the cost of illness.

"Any health insurance program worthy of the name," he said, "should have a much broader objective. It should be a comprehensive plan organized and directed toward promoting good health."

Opposition leader George Drew at the outset of the debate had called for thorough enquiries into all aspects of public health administration. McCusker said that was exactly the purpose of the 10 provincial health surveys sponsored by the federal government, nine of which—all but Newfoundland's—have been made public.

C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell demanded an immediate start "without further investigations." McCusker said the government could not rush into national health insurance in the headlong fashion advocated by the C.C.F. He also said a C.C.F. campaign to secure signatures for a petition to parliament urging immediate adoption of health insurance legislation was an "hysterical campaign in an attempt to urge precipitate action."

C.C.F.'er Urges New Trade Plan

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (BUP)—Percy Wright (C.C.F.-Melfort) Wednesday night urged Canada to accept sterling payments from Britain for Canadian food products and re-invest the sterling in British plans to increase that country's supply of exportable manufactured goods.

The investment would give Britain more goods to sell for dollars on Canadian and American markets, he said in the Commons.

A sudden upswing in egg production on the prairies has resulted in a downward revision of egg prices here.

The changes became effective today. Grade A large eggs dropped a full 8 cents a dozen, while Grade A mediums dropped 5, Grade A small and Grade B eggs were not affected.

The price change came about because of a large shipment of cheap prairie eggs received in Vancouver.

What About the Hospitals?

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT'S latest announcement on hospital insurance, however sound it may be in itself, raises more questions than it answers.

The hospitals have been told to hold their expenditures in the next year to the existing level, despite an increase in their operating costs. The government is quite right in believing that hospital costs are increasing too fast, that medical treatment is becoming too expensive to be borne by the individual or the community. A halt must be called somewhere.

Nevertheless the hospitals are now placed in a difficult if not an impossible position.

They have based all their calculations on the assumption of a universal and compulsory insurance scheme, which would compel every person, except indigents, to contribute regularly to a central fund. So long as the scheme was universal and compulsory the collection of this money was assured. There was a foundation under the hospital scheme.

Now the scheme is no longer compulsory in any real sense since the final sanction of prosecution has been removed from those who do not choose to pay premiums. The result of this change in policy is not yet known. The government has not told the public how many people have quietly dropped out of the scheme or whether the revenues have dropped significantly in consequence. The public does not know where the scheme stands. The hospitals thus cannot know where they are likely to stand during the next year. The sooner the government issues figures to show the actual state of the insurance fund the better.

Probably the decision to halt all prosecutions has had no great effect yet. Those who decide to abandon insurance because they no longer face any legal penalty will not all drop out at once. They will leave the scheme one by one over a period of months. The question thus is where we shall stand about a year hence.

It is difficult for the layman to see how the scheme can work unless it is universal, or how the hospitals, on their present basis of costs, can pay their way unless they are fully underwritten by the premiums paid by everybody. For the hospitals must still treat the sick and many of those who are not insured simply will not or cannot pay the present cost of treatment. Who is to make up the resulting deficit?

In the state of confusion now prevailing economy in hospital operation certainly is imperative. The government is quite right about that. But even if the hospitals can manage to hold down their costs to the present level, or if the municipalities are compelled to come to their aid—the municipalities being already overloaded with costs of their own—still the sovereign questions raised by the government have yet to be answered. Is the government planning a voluntary and restricted insurance scheme, with all the consequences involved, or does it intend to maintain a universal scheme? And if the scheme is to be universal how can it be maintained without compulsion?

Until the government makes up its mind on those questions all other arguments are irrelevant and the whole hospital system lacks any firm foundation.

The Price of Cigarettes

THE FIRST ATTEMPT TO CUT the high price of cigarettes produces the usual reaction from a protected Canadian tobacco industry. At once a Conservative member from Ontario leaps up to tell Parliament that the whole industry will be ruined if any American cigarettes are sold in this country. There must be no relief for the smoker.

Whether smoking should be encouraged or discouraged is another matter on which opinions will differ. But the principle of protectionism as applied to tobacco applies equally to all other goods covered by the Canadian tariff. If it is sound to prohibit the importation of foreign cigarettes it is equally sound to prohibit the importation of any article which can be made in Canada at any price, however high.

Where would such a policy lead us? It would drastically reduce all imports and, as a result, all exports, since foreign countries will not buy from us if we do not buy from them. To protect the industries of central Canada in the comfortable manner of life to which they are accustomed, the great basic industries, especially the industries of the west, like agriculture, timber, minerals and fishing, must lose the foreign markets on which they largely live. And the consumer must pay any price which the protected industries care to ask.

Cigarettes are not a large factor in the national economy, but the attempt to keep their price up, to prevent any real competition, opens up the whole tariff argument which has usually been the core of Canadian politics for the last century.

It will be interesting to see, by this preliminary test, whether the Conservative party is going back to its original protectionist position. Interesting, also, to see whether the Liberal government will stand by its principles of maximum trade and competition.

Neighbor Spies on Neighbor

IT IS SCARCELY SURPRISING that the author of Quebec's infamous "padlock" law—a measure contrary in every essence to Canadian principles of liberty—should find delight in the advancement of a new bill further blocking interprovincial trade in magazine and denying the people of his province legal access to a cheap substitute for butter.

Speaking on the measure which would empower the government to seize cars, trucks, buses and even trains carrying margarine into the province, Premier Duplessis says:

"I am as proud of this legislation as I was of the padlock law I presented in 1937 which has been the safeguard of our way of life against nefarious ideologies and communism."

So speaks Quebec's premier of a piece of legislation which thwarts the entire principle of commerce between the integral parts of the nation and certainly violates the constitution in spirit if not in letter. But the law does not end there. It contains a demeaning clause which promises informers half the fines imposed upon people caught violating it. In other words, in Quebec, neighbor is being encouraged to spy on neighbor and, for personal gain, to report him to the authorities.

How far is that from the tragic stories that come from communist countries of children denouncing their friends and parents? Not far. Honest Canadians are shamed by the existence of such trends in their nation. But they may draw some oblique benefit from the Duplessis gesture. As long as things like that happen here, Canadians should be able to escape a feeling of self-righteousness and complacency.

The Public Pays

THOSE WHO IMAGINE THAT wages have very little to do with prices should observe what is happening in the Canadian railways.

A conciliation board recommends a general rise of 16 cents an hour in the wages of the non-operating railway trades. The railways immediately announce that this will cost them $53 millions a year in extra wages and they apply to the Transport Board for an increase of 9 per cent in freight rates.

Any such increase will be paid by the public in the price of goods that move by rail, as most goods do. Whether the wage increase recommended by the conciliation board is justified or not—and the railway unions insist on a still larger increase—the public cannot escape the resulting cost. Everybody will pay it, whether he knows that or not.

And if wages are to go on increasing in our great basic industries like railways, thus increasing the production costs of all subsidiary industries, many of our products will be damaged in the competition of the world market, with resulting damage to the workers who depend on them for their livelihood.

Excusable in the Young

IN A SOCIETY ACCUSED OF spending too much time sitting down to watch expert athletes put on demonstrations, it is interesting to note that almost half the students of Greater Victoria schools are not content with that practice. They play games in school and house leagues and they are building healthy bodies in the process.

Physical education is a required course in the schools. The students must go through their ordinary schedules of exercises. But beyond that, approximately every other child goes into games. There he or she should learn something of sportsmanship and enjoy the keen edge of competition.

That is the story of the Greater Victoria schools as far as athletics are concerned. But it need cause little anxiety. After all, these are usually young children, seldom out of their teens. As they grow older and reach income-earning brackets, they will lay aside foolishness. They, too, can be counted on to express the culture of their age, developing excellent sitting muscles and substantial lung power as they watch their favorites play out-of-town teams.

LOOSE ENDS

The Housewife

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE other night Mr. James Sinclair, the new minister of finance, gave radio listeners, perhaps unconsciously, an interesting little proof of Canadian democracy. For here was a privy councillor and cabinet minister, one of that scant score of men who govern Canada, and what was he talking about? He was talking about the cooking of fish. He had left the council chamber to drop into the housewife's kitchen. You can hardly ask a statesman to be more democratic, egalitarian and folksy than that.

But alas, though Mr. Sinclair may move Parliament, as he often has done, he encounters a much more formidable obstacle in the housewife. She is not easily moved. She is especially immovable when you ask her to cook fish. She does not know how to cook fish and she has no intention of finding out.

THE FIRST DAYS

To the economist and the historian this is interesting. The economist wants the housewife to cook fish so that the nation may use more of it and support the fishing industry, now in difficulties. The historian knows that from the first days, when the French, English and Spanish fishermen discovered the Grand Banks, the diet of Canadians was mainly fish.

Without fish the early settlers in this land would have perished. Cartier at Quebec and Champlain almost a hundred years later could not have endured their first Canadian winters without fish and, commercially, the great fish trade came before the trade in furs. Out west, on the Pacific coast, human beings lived on fish for centuries before the first white man appeared.

Fish is an old story with Canadians. Perhaps that is why they don't like fish today. They are tired of it. This, as Mr. Sinclair observes, is a great mistake since fish is a good food and we have plenty of it, which anyone can enjoy if he can pay the present high price and if he can find a wife who will cook it properly. He is not likely to find such a wife.

THE TYCOON

Recently I had lunch with one of the chief figures in the Canadian fishing industry in a rather swaggy public eating place. This tycoon of the ocean, in patriotic support of his own industry, ordered salmon and urged me to do the same. I had enough sense to refuse, for I had no money invested in the industry and wanted a decent lunch. The matter turned out as I had expected—the tycoon could hardly eat his salmon. The cooks, as always, had ruined it. He pushed the dish aside and said, rather sadly, that if he could only teach cooks how to treat fish all the problems of his industry would be solved.

Mr. Sinclair evidently understands that the kernel of the fishing problem is the cook. The government, therefore, at large public expense, maintains model kitchens and accomplished cooks in Ottawa to teach the housewife her business. So far as I can observe, the housewife still refuses to learn, for I have never yet found a Canadian housewife who failed to ruin the best fish in the world; whereas the housewife of New England, for example, can take an inferior fish of almost any sort and produce a masterpiece.

THE OLD CONSPIRACY

Mr. Sinclair, one man facing the solid phalanx of Canadian womanhood united in silent compact against fish, is to be pitied. What chance has the ablest government surrounded by such a subtle conspiracy? And anyway, if by some miracle the housewife should decide to cook fish and thus absorb all the surplus of the fishing industry, surely that means a reduction in her purchase of other foods. There will then be surpluses in other industries, too much meat, perhaps, or vegetables or wheat.

We produce more of most things than we can possibly eat. Even if we threw our diet and health to the winds, ate six meals a day and swelled our girth to utmost circumference, still we could not begin to eat all our food.

This is the plain mathematical and biological fact which the tariff protectionists refuse to see. By keeping out foreign goods they would make it impossible to sell our own to other countries. We would be left alone in this country sitting on a bursting granary of wheat and a slippery mountain of fish.

Let the statesmen and economists quarrel about the economics of this process. A much larger problem involves it is the problem of cooking a fish. It baffles womankind who have learned everything from psychology to politics, who know everything from household to personal decoration, who own almost everything from bonds to houses, who can do everything, from deciding elections to holding their men, but who regard a fish as their natural enemy and won't listen even to the cooling tones of a handsome young privy councillor.

Another Expedition Runs Into Difficulties

As Our Readers See It

HACKNEYED BATTLE

I perceive that your columns are still being bombarded with letters concerning that now hackneyed battle between cats and boys. In the last three weeks I have seen 10 letters, none of them particularly constructive, all dealing with this trivial topic. However, not once during this space of time have I seen one comment, criticism or mention of any sort of the Korean war, where innumerable lives are being lost daily. It would appear that local citizens hold more dear the lives of their household pets than the lives of those shedding their blood for their country. "Spero Meliora."

P. S. DeV. SMITHERS.
2624 Oak Bay Avenue.

EDUCATION

Recently two members of the B.C. educational department spoke in defense of our educational system in B.C.

The superintendent of provincial education said, if he was reported correctly in the press, that "Canadian educationists were doing a better job now than ever." He condemned the critics, and very wrongly so. Had I been able to attend that lecture, I would have called his bluff.

The education system now in British Columbia started to go down when the powers to be at that time decided to pass pupils into entrance and high school on recommendation. I believe this was done by a former minister of education who formerly hailed from Saskatchewan, and possibly one other.

I have been interested in education in B.C. for a great many years. I have watched my own children in the past, and other people's children. I have with many others watched the fall of our once splendid system. Now we hear of grade children in all walks of life whose own parents notice the change from the time they went to school in this province, and many of them do not like the foolish way the report cards are marked these days.

I know that there were some who did not like the government examinations because their children could not stand the strain of examinations. These were the very ones who should have had examinations because they were usually poor in their year's work and naturally would have turned out the same type of work in the finals. I know what I am talking about.

Let me tell you, that the pupils who did good work all through the year, came out the same and even higher in the final government examinations, and they did not get a chance to see examination papers either. Enough said.

MRS. ADELAIDE MARSHALL.
1415 Cook Street.

NO MIRACLE

May I just refer briefly to the letter of Mr. S. A. Whitfield of Parksville on your issue of November 26 in which he, referring to the Korean conflict, states that man cannot contain evil, and suggests that before it is too late we—"Enquire of God" who he informs us does deal in miracles. However the situation is not encouraging since for thousands of years mankind has prayed to his gods, built and attended churches; and believed in miracles.

Yet not one has ever happened and war has been constant and evil ever present with man, and at the moment the shattering of life in traffic accidents, the millions of sick and suffering little children in hundreds of hospitals and the 80,000 cases of mental deficiency in Canada alone seems to have called for no miracle.

L. J. PEPPER.

For the Marketing Board

As a member of the vegetable marketing board I would like space to reply to Mr. C. K. Upshall, whose letter you published November 24.

Frankly Mr. Editor, I find it impossible to believe that Mr. Upshall is so ignorant of the affairs of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board that his letter was written in full sincerity. It is no more that another attempt of the negligible minority of producers who oppose the board and to inflame public opinion against it.

The detailed statements in the letter are too absurd to merit comment and it is almost insulting to your readers to take up space telling them once again the position of the board.

The marketing board was set up to control the marketing of vegetables in the interest of producer and consumer alike.

It was established by the vote of the vast majority of the farmers growing the produce it handles. It is controlled by a board of directors elected by the farmers, and it can be abolished at any time they vote to do so.

It is the failure of the minority referred to above to advance their views among their fellow producers, which causes them to seek other means of attacking the board. At a recent meeting in the Nanaimo area called at the instance of a person apparently like-minded with Mr. Upshall, a motion directed against the board failed to find a second. Nothing could better indicate the feeling of the majority of producers.

In conclusion, I am not a paid servant of the board but have marketed over 20 tons a year of potatoes for over 10 years, and shall still vote for the Marketing Board with a view to improving the lot of my fellow farmers.

Seeing Mr. Upshall says turnips are retailing at 11c a pound, I see in your advertisements today Safeway's turnips, local, 5c a pound. This is different from 11c, so don't get misled.

"MR. PUBLIC."

Dangers of The Stalemate

By JOSEPH ALSOP, From London

DWIGHT D. Eisenhower's trip to Korea, plus the reactions to it here in London, add up to an interesting composite symbol. In fact the Korean problem stands for a whole class of problems which will be sitting on the Presidential doorstep ticking away like so many time bombs, when Eisenhower enters the White House.

First of all, overestimating the explosive political possibilities is really impossible. What-ever decision Eisenhower takes—about, unless it is a decision to do nothing at all—is quite likely to touch off a major explosion in Britain and on the Continent. Loss of confidence in American good sense and good intentions has gone very far and very deep. Bad trouble can only be avoided if Eisenhower explains what he means to do in frank detail and in advance of doing it.

Since his decision can hardly be published to the whole world, Eisenhower will necessarily have to limit these advance consultations to America's major allies. This will run counter to the U.S. State Department's passionate belief in the prime rule for being a bad host—never invite anyone to a party unless you invite everyone. But the fact remains that unilateral American action in Korea, taken without advance Allied discussions, is now capable of shaking the Western Alliance to its foundations.

GOLD PROGRAM

Second, however, there are signs that an intelligent and bold program of action in Korea, if wisely presented, will be welcomed and supported in London. Among the small number of British government leaders who know the facts, the feeling is reluctantly growing, so to speak, that it will be downright dangerous to prolong the present Korean stalemate indefinitely. The reasons for this are highly practical.

In brief, during the last year-and-a-half, our own power in Korea has not been importantly augmented, while the enemy power has been massively and continuously built up.

In Korea proper, the Chinese and North Korean armies have been brought to full strength. They have been deeply dug in. They have been provided with great quantities of armor and artillery which they previously lacked. They have accumulated huge forward stocks of supplies of all kinds.

Above the Yalu, meanwhile, the Chinese armies in position to enter the Korean fighting have been increased to at least half a million men, by the always conservative British estimate. And the Soviet-Chinese air forces have been strikingly augmented, by at least 200 of the new Russian twin jet medium bombers among other elements.

IMPRESSIVE POINT

The continuity of the enemy build-up is the impressive point. Recruitments of additional South Korean forces will of course somewhat redress the balance. But the fact remains that the enemy looks like it is gaining power much faster than we can gain power.

Obviously if this is allowed to go on indefinitely, a time will come when the enemy power will be dangerously preponderant. At that time, the enemy will be able to think about breaking the Korean stalemate by the simple expedient of throwing us bodily out of the Korean peninsula.

Those who know these facts in London will therefore not be shocked if President Eisenhower proposes what may be called a preventive offensive, limited to Korea, and intended to bring the enemy to terms before his build-up has gone too far.

Furthermore, the same inner group of informed men here are also hoping that President Eisenhower will note the existence of the same dangerous pattern in other areas. In Indo-China particularly, the position is even more threatening than in Korea.

Ups and Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"THERE are fashions," said the Elevator Man, "in names as in everything else. I'll bet there are thousands of Stalin Squares and Stalin Streets and Stalin Roads in Russia, just as before the war there were thousands of Hitler Places, Hitler Avenues and Hitler Streets in Germany. Of course, the Hitler names all changed abruptly after the war—they didn't last a thousand years, as the fashions boasted they would. But the fads continue. Elizabeth and Philip are favorite names for offspring in England right now. Canada had a wave of Barbara Anns a while ago. And there's always a hero or heroine rising to the heights with a new suggestion for harassed parents. I wouldn't be surprised to see a few Wacs around the province before long, although we aren't often given to labelling geography after contemporary people."

We have a Mount Eisenhower, though. Somebody must have seen him as good presidential timber even six years ago. Lower main!

"Over in Elre," said the Elevator Man, "the folks are a little more cautious. They were all set to name a new village street after Ike, but thought it over again. They figured it was dangerous to 'name a street after a living person. While they may be popular now, they may not be so popular a few years hence.' So they compromised by naming the street after General Jackson, flipping back to the seventh president. I guess Ike will have to prove himself first. But his time will come. You can't permanently overlook a couple of local boys like O'Jackson and O'Eisenhower. Mezzanine!

"Apart from streets and mountains," said the Elevator Man, "men also give their names to women. 'Why don't you give your name to some girl,' the newlywed asked a woman-hater. 'Get a little wife to share your lot.' 'It sounds all right,' grumbled the wary one. 'But some of these shareholders blossom into directors.'"

Lie Warns Americans To Talk or Lose Jobs

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 4 (UP). — Secretary General Trygve Lie warned a group of close-mouthed Americans employed by the United Nations they must decide today whether they want to answer Senate committee questions on Communism or lose their jobs.

Informants said Lie handed down the talk-or-be-fired ultimatum in letters sent to employees who had refused to answer certain questions asked by the McCarran internal security subcommittee.

Lie said he wanted the unwilling witnesses to notify him by letter today they had informed the McCarran group they would answer questions they previously had ducked.

The informants said Lie was heeding the advice given last Sunday by a team of three eminent jurists who recommended the firing of any employee belonging to the U.S. Communist Party or refusing to talk about alleged subversive activities in this country.

Lie turned to the jurists for their opinions last month after he had fired one reluctant witness, suspended another and given "special leave" to almost a dozen more.

The ultimatum was revealed only a few hours after the International Monetary Fund, an agency of the U.N., announced in Washington it had fired its 52,000-a-year secretary, Frank Cow, for refusing to tell Senate investigators whether he had belonged to a wartime spy ring.

Courageous Wife, Fiancee Join Hunt for Lost Flyers

WASAGA BEACH, Ont., Dec. 4 (BUP). — A courageous wife and a fiancee joined in a desperate search today for four Edmonton Eskimo fans whose light plane was believed to have crashed in this area five days ago.

Mrs. Bud Edgar, wife of one missing man, and Grace Burchell, fiancee of Frank Jakes, pilot of the single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza, refused to lose hope for the men.

"I have a feeling the men are alive and in the bush somewhere," Mrs. Edgar said. "If they are, there's a good chance they'll be all right." Both women intended staying with the diminished ground party until the men were found or the search abandoned.

The search was concentrated on the Balm Beach/Woodland Beach area between Collingwood and Wasaga. A helicopter scanned the Notawasaga Bay.

An army search band of 125 men from Camp Borden gave up Wednesday night after a five-day search in freezing temperatures, snowstorms and two feet of snow.

Provincial police and civilian searchers stayed at the scene, but offered little hope for the men. The four disappeared last Friday night en route to the Grey Cup game in Toronto on Saturday, and had no rations or equipment to help them survive in the bush.

Painless Parker's Son Runs Risk of Losing Inheritance

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4 (AP). — Dr. Edgar R. Parker, son of the late Painless Parker, is contesting his father's will despite a provision that any heir who disputes it will be excluded from any benefits.

Parker, 41, of Vancouver, B.C., contends he made a verbal agreement with his father to inherit all the Painless Parker chain dentistry offices in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

He also said he was guaranteed not less than one-half of the remainder of the estate.

His estranged wife, Kathryn, charged Parker is making a "deliberate effort" to be disinherited from an estimated $50,000 to avoid a court attachment on the money. She said Parker owes $25,000 for the support of his two children.

Parker's attorney, Earl Berger, said he filed the protest to establish the will.

SEIXAS, SEDGEMAN IN AUSTRALIA NET FINAL

MELBOURNE, Dec. 4 (AP)—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, playing captain of the United States Davis Cup team, whipped Australia's Ken McGregor today 7-5, 6-1, 6-2, to enter the final of the Victorian tennis tournament.

Seixas will be pitted against Frank Sedgman, the Aussies' cup ace, in the final. Sedgman trounced his countryman, Mervyn Rose, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, in the other semi-final.

Earlier, Maureen Connolly, American and Wimbledon champion, easily disposed of Australia's Mary Hawton, 6-4, 6-1. Julie Sampson of California had tougher going in the other semi-final against Australia's Helen Angwin, but won 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

He walked into the office, ducked under the 78-inch retaining wall, and murmured "glad to see you again."

It was George Lytle Rogers, the string bean that tied onto the end of a tennis racket, used to cover the back courts for the Irish international tennis side in years gone by, much in the manner of an octopus.

Members of Victoria Lawn Tennis Club will remember George. He instructed here for a time and was also responsible for bringing the pro tennis troupe to Victoria, though you may not know it.

As a matter of fact George was in charge of the salaried help that made up the pro tennis circuit for a time. His title was president of the association to which they paid their dues.

But that was only for the time, it took George to peer into the idiosyncrasies which made them tick.

"They were too hard to handle," says George. And the deal never worked out.

But perhaps because of their great ability, or more so because of their own belief in their particular talents in terms of cold hard dollars and cents, George says "the pros (the best ones like Riggs, Gonzales and even Kramer) were too selfish for their own good and also the possibilities the pro game held for top-flight amateurs who had no other particular calling."

"The pro game is dead to what it could have been," he said, "and was killed by its own hand."

Of the article in the current issue of Sport Magazine, which George hasn't seen, but has heard of, and in which Jack Kramer says in effect that Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor will turn pro this year following the Davis Cup matches, George expounds a strange theory.

A Knighthood or a Hundred Grand!

But strange as it sounds, it may border on the vernacular, knowing the strange ways of men of extraordinary talent such as Sedgman and their flair for esteem never, however, has their pride hurt their pocketbook.

It's George's view that Kramer has already made tentative arrangements for a professional tour and will swish a bundle of greenbacks under the seemingly receptive noses of Sedgman and McGregor in this regard.

This total could be a staggering 100 grand for Sedgman with an equally enticing roll for McGregor to sift through his wily fingers.

But it's also just as possible, says George, that Sedgman, while fingering the foliage and adding up the interest he and the bundle will bring in possible future pro matches, will cast a sly glance in the direction of his homeland and say, "Well fellows, what's the counter proposal?"

This, says Lytle Rogers, could mean a Knighthood for Sedgman, who after all is probably the most famous figure of the present Australia era. And Knighthoods don't come cheaply in Commonwealth eyes.

Sedgman is still an amateur, it says in small print which is as readable as the bold-faced headlines, and why shouldn't he be? It was his wife who received the $25,000 wedding present Australian fans so generously donated in the trust that Sedgman implied would be his to them in view of such tender appreciation of his future marital bliss.

Frank's Wife Would Be Willing

There is nothing to prevent a similar "gift" to Sedgman, er... his wife, Lytle Rogers asserts, while pointing out that Sedgman's connections with a large sports goods organization down under don't detract in any way from his earnings even when he is touring the world on a well-heeled cuff as an amateur tennis ambassador.

Naturally no provisions go with Knighthoods, if such will be the case that Lytle Rogers profounds, but the implication on Sedgman in such an eventuality may be worth even more than Kramer's roll could buy.

At any rate, Kramer also says in the article that he can beat Sedgman and points out why. If Lytle Rogers, who has had the opportunity of delving into the aspects of both sides of the case, and from a neutral viewpoint, is correct in his assumption, Kramer may never get the chance to prove his words.

But then $100,000 is a lot of fish, Sir Frank.

Ed Ngai, Nancy Craig Take City Paddle Titles

An upset marked men's singles to take the women's doubles play at the Victoria Table Tennis Association's tournament wound up Wednesday night.

Brotherly love was no where to be seen as Ed Ngai upset his title-holding brother Art to become new single's champion by scores of 20-22, 21-17, 21-16, 21-19 in a gruelling five-set battle.

Nancy Craig came out of the competition a double champion. Favored in the women's singles she defeated Val Druce, 21-15, 21-19, 21-10, 21-12, 21-9 and then teamed up with Doreen Evans to take the women's doubles crown.

The champions defeated Val Druce and Diane Heaney, 21-14, 21-18, 21-13 for the doubles laurels.

Ed Ngai paired with Eric Goodwin to whip Stan Ngai and D. Elworthy 23-21, 23-21 in the men's doubles.

Other results follow:

Handicap singles—Ray defeated Marion Wood, 21-18, 21-18, 21-18. Junior singles—Ray Greenwood defeated Gerry Wood, 21-19, 21-12, 21-12.

Juvenile singles—Wilt Jay defeated Brian Hobbs, 21-15, 21-13, 21-13. Junior doubles—Ray Greenwood and W. Jay defeated J. Metcalfe and Ron Jay, 21-19, 21-13, 21-13.

Senior veterans—D. Wilkinson defeated W. Robinson, 14-21, 21-14, 21-13, 21-14. "A" doubles—W. Chew and D. Wilkinson defeated C. Neal and B. Mason, 21-15, 21-11, 21-11.

Mixed doubles—V. Druce and K. Olson defeated B. Yardley and L. Greenwood, 21-19, 20-22, 21-19, 21-18. "A" singles—W. Chew defeated K. Olson, 21-12, 21-19, 21-12, 21-13, 21-13. Novice singles—Ray Jay defeated J. Stewart, 21-19, 21-13, 21-12.

Yakima Gives Two for Two

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4 (BUP)—The Yakima Bears of the Western International Baseball League have two new players for the 1953 season—after a four-man swap at the annual baseball meetings in Phoenix, Arizona.

The Bears cut loose Frank Mataya, former W.S.C. performer, and first baseman Earl Richmond. In return they picked up Glenn Schaeffer, who hit .300 for Temple, Texas, in 1951, but was idle last year, and catcher Hank Robinson, who played with Tyler, Texas, and Beaumont, Texas, last season.

The swaps were made with the Tyler club of the Big State League.

McCULLOUGH TO CUBS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4 (AP)—Chicago Cubs acquired veteran catcher Clyde McCullough from Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday in a trade for pitcher Dick Manville and an undisclosed sum of cash.

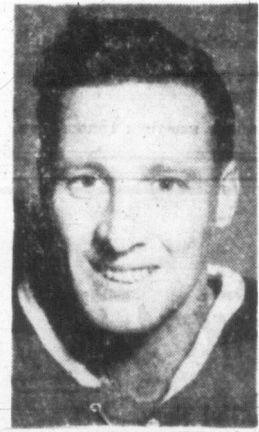

DICK ELLIS

SOMETHING NEW was added to the Victorian when Dick Ellis was named club coach, succeeding Derek Hyde-Lay. Ellis, starry scum half, personally led his Oak Bay Wanderers to the city championship last year and his spirit and experience will make "Tide" a definite threat for cup honors.

RONNIE JOE

A NEW THREAT loomed on the local boxing horizon is flashy Ronnie Joe who scored two spectacular knockouts in his last two bouts. Joe is being handled by popular Ed Duffin, one of the most respected mitt instructors in the city. Joe merits a tough opponent here Saturday night in the person of Vancouver's Norm Jorgenson.

JIM FAIRBURN

IT'S NOTHING NEW for anyone who has seen him play but little Jim Fairburn, Cougar right-winger, is rapidly becoming the spark plug of a club that needs spark plugs. The hustling Fairburn, on loan for the season from Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, is third in the Cougar scoring with five goals and 16 assists.

Kerr, Dorohoy Gain in Point Parade

Gordie Kerr of Tacoma moved up into a tie for fourth place in the Western Hockey League scoring race Wednesday night as he notched Rockets' only goal in the 4-1 loss to Edmonton Flyers.

Kerr has 8 goals and 22 assists for 30 points which puts him in a tie with his teammate, "Wingy" Johnston.

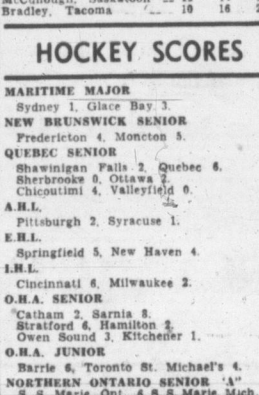

Ian Mackintosh of Vancouver and George Senick of Saskatoon still continue to lead the pack. Mackintosh has 17 goals, league high, and 18 assists for 35 points while Senick has 14 goals and 21 assists for a like number of points.

Eddie Dorohoy picked up two points, one goal and one assist, in Seattle on Wednesday night as Cougars bowed to Seattle, 5-3, to become the leading card scorer with 11 goals and 14 assists for 25 points.

Leading scorers follow:

Mackintosh, Vancouver, 17 G, 18 A, 35 Pts. Senick, Saskatoon, 14 G, 21 A, 35 Pts. Johnston, Vancouver, 17 G, 18 A, 35 Pts. Kerr, Tacoma, 8 G, 22 A, 30 Pts. Dorohoy, Seattle, 11 G, 14 A, 25 Pts.

RUNNING PROWESS EXCEEDS SPORTSMANSHIP

Zatopek's Triumph Tainted Red

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—A cable dispatch from London reports that a group of the world's leading sports authorities has voted Emil Zatopek, the indefatigable Czech, as the world's No. 1 sportsman for 1952.

North Americans are justified in being a trifle confused. Zatopek the No. 1 athlete? Well, perhaps. But No. 1 sportsman? No—not in our strictest interpretation of the term.

To Europeans the label of "sportsman" may be applied to anyone connected with sport. To us it stands for more than strength, marvellous speed or record-shattering triumphs. It connotes a spirit of fair play, humility in victory, graciousness in defeat.

Premier as an athlete, Zatopek falls far short of the requirements for a sportsman here.

The lean, arm-flapping wonder indeed thrilled the world with his fantastic feats of speed and endurance in the Helsinki Olympics which brought him gold medal victories in the 5,000 and 10,000-metre runs and the marathon.

Yet he proved a bitter disappointment to millions afterwards when he used his fame as an instrument of Communist propaganda, destroying much of the international goodwill which had been generated in these traditional games.

We remember him well at the Russian pine-studded village of Otanien, a camp of the Iron Curtain athletes hidden some 15 miles from the heart of Helsinki.

He was a pleasant fellow, yet he proved a bitter disappointment to millions afterwards when he used his fame as an instrument of Communist propaganda, destroying much of the international goodwill which had been generated in these traditional games.

Oak Bay Booters Finish Undefeated

Oak Bay High School soccer juniors wound up a spectacular season Wednesday when they goose-egged Mount View 2-0 in the final Inter-High School game of the season.

The victory gave Oak Bay a record of five wins against no losses or ties, and they had only one goal scored against them during those five games. The Bays scored a total of 13 goals during the season.

Oak Bay finished with a four-point lead over second-place Esquimalt to lead the six-team league.

Goals by Bud Shipley and Roy Hughes gave Bays a 2-0 first-half lead and their strong defensive play protected the edge during the second half.

RANGERS VICTIMS

Chihawks Add To N.H.L. Lead

"Them as has, gets," so the saying goes. That's the Chicago Black Hawks. Sid Abel's crew has the winning spirit this season and they're grabbing those National Hockey League wins whenever they can.

Wednesday night they filed away No. 12—a 5-3 win over the tail-end New York Rangers. Tonight they'll try for No. 13 when they face the fourth-place Boston Bruins.

The Hawks now are comfortably settled on top of the league, five points ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

While the sun shines on the Black Hawks, the Toronto Maple Leaf camp is shrouded in gloom. Conn Smythe is faced with a grave problem. His Leafs, now in fourth place with the Bruins, are hamstringed by injuries. He has only one recall left from his farm at Pittsburgh. If he makes that recall he'll have nothing left for a later emergency, and the season is still young.

MAY CALL ON BILL

He hinted that he may recall the one player he said would never play for the Leafs again. That player is Wild Bill Ezinicki who was banished to the American Hockey League.

Meantime, the Leafs left for Montreal with what strength they have left for a game with the third-place Canadiens tonight.

A third game tonight will see Detroit playing host to the Rangers.

ARCADIA, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP)—Two top campaigners from Down Under, Australia's Peshaware and New Zealand's Dalry, have been nominated for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 28, the management of Santa Anita Park announces.

The pair will be flown here a week before the 1 1/4-mile event, Wednesday's announcement said, and they probably will also run in the $100,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap, a closing-day feature at 1 1/4 miles, March 7.

Peshaware last October won the Caulfield Cup, one of Australia's top turf events. Dalry won the Melbourne Cup Nov. 4, running two miles in 3:23 1/4, four seconds faster than the great Phar Lap when he won the event in 1930. Dalry carried 134 pounds over a heavy track.

light when he talked of running techniques with other athletes. He and his attractive wife, Dana, herself an Olympic javelin champion, spoke good English. More than that, they spoke.

In that respect they were different from the other Iron Curtain athletes who wandered around the rough-hewn premises under the watchful eyes of the blue-coated MVD men.

The Zatopeks appeared more western and more independent than their Iron Curtain counterparts. And the men who were the first to give them plenty of room.

Zatopek told a group of American athletes and newspaper men of his desire to come to the United States. He spoke well of the country, said he was flattered Americans should want to see him run, hinted he might make it.

It was in good faith then that the U.S. secretary of commerce, Charles Sawyer, invited the Zatopeks to tour the U.S.

President Truman even expressed approval of the idea. It wasn't until two weeks later that this gesture of friendliness was used by Zatopek—as a propaganda boomerang.

"I only laughed when I received these ridiculous, un-sportsmanlike offers," Zatopek told his fellow countrymen in a news conference. "They have nothing but circus tricks there."

Zatopek, a great athlete, sure. But a revered Olympian who will be remembered in the same breath with the Nurmis and the Owens? We doubt it.

Victoria Cougars are back in the cellar again following Wednesday night's bargain-basement Western Hockey League schedule and one day in seventh place.

While the top teams rested, the also-rans scrapped over the scraps with the Cougars dropping a 5-3 game to Seattle Bombers. Edmonton tripped Tacoma, 4-1.

The combination dropped Cougars into the last-place berth they had vacated the previous night, one point back of Edmonton. Bombers are in fourth place and Bombers sixth.

Bombers spotted Victoria two goals in the first period but bounced back to take their third straight triumph.

PARGETER GETS PAIR

George Pargeter led the way with two goals. Rudy Filion, Lorne Nieuve and Doug Macaulay were the other Seattle marksmen.

Playing coach Eddie Dorohoy, Andy Heberton and Jim Fairburn were the Victoria artillery.

Edmonton took advantage of penalties to whip Rockets. Rags Raglan, Earl Reibel, Larry Zeidel and Ching Johnson did the Edmonton scoring and Gord Kerr got the Tacoma goal.

Rockets, who now have one draw and one loss on the prairies, wind up their visit tonight against the first-place Saskatoon Quakers. The rest of the teams are idle.

ROYALS COMING

Cougars meet New Westminster Royals at Memorial Arena Friday night at 8.30 and close out their heavy schedule of five games within the week with a game at Tacoma Saturday.

Tigers, Browns In Swap

No Cash Involved In Five-Player Deal

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4 (AP)—In the fourth major deal in a year, the Tigers and Browns have traded pitchers Virgil Trucks and centerfielder Johnny Groth to the Browns for leftfielder Bob Nieman, second baseman Owen Friend and catcher-outfielder J. W. Porter.

The swap, involving some $250,000 in player talent, did not include any cash, Rudy Schaffer, Browns general manager, said.

Trucks, a 33-year-old right-hander, pitched two no-hitters in 1952 but wound up with a 5-19 record. Groth, 26, a Detroit regular since 1949, hit .284 in 141 games, and White, a 33-year-old relief pitcher, had a 1-8 record in 41 games.

The most important St. Louis player involved was Nieman, 25, a rookie sensation with a .289 batting average, 18 homers and 74 runs batted in.

Porter, used both as a catcher and outfielder, received a $65,000 bonus from Chicago White Sox as a free agent. Last season the 19-year-old prospect hit .250 for the Browns.

The Tigers will have to wait a week or so for Friend, 25, to be discharged from military service. He was the Browns' regular second baseman in 1950, hitting .237 in 119 games.

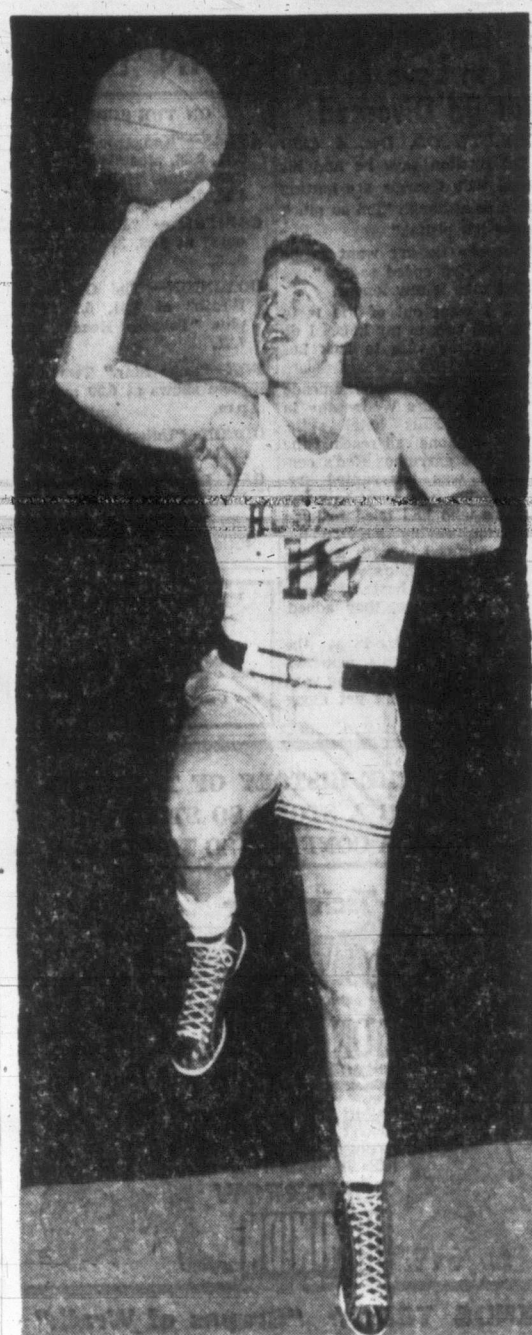

A total of 24 players changed uniforms in the series of Tiger-Brown deals that started last winter.

At first glance, it appeared the Browns had the best of the latest trade, acquiring a starting pitcher in Trucks and a regular centerfielder in Groth for one proven big leaguer—Nieman. However, the Tigers were reported to have Porter, who has promise of becoming a future star.

MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS AWAIT RESULT

Minors to Air Bonus Rule

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4 (UP)—Minor league baseball officials will decide today whether big league club owners can continue paying gigantic bonuses to untried kids without placing them under certain strict and special regulations.

That was the key item on the agenda as the club owners went into closed session to vote on matters which could alter the entire structure of baseball.

President George Trautman of the minor leagues urged the delegates to vote for some kind of bonus legislation, reminding them that nearly $500,000 was spent last year on green youngsters who never had played an inning of professional ball.

Although many veteran minor league club owners were predicting that neither of the proposed "bonus rules" would pass by the required three-quarters majority, Trautman said "I personally am very optimistic."

Chief obstacle against passage is divided sentiment for the two rules. One is sponsored by the major-minor executive council and Trautman is supporting that. The other is offered by the Yankee organization through its Kansas City farm club.

They are similar in that the major-minor rule would impose restrictions on a youngster after he had been given a $5,000 payment to become a major leaguer, while the Kansas City club raises the level to $6,000. The Kansas City club also provides a system of merit payments if the youngster makes good, but it also keeps him a "bonus player" all his life. The bonus restrictions end after two years under the major-minor plan.

If neither rule passes, as is likely, the rule will not even come up for consideration in the major league meetings later in the week. That would leave club owners free to rove the country as they have done and pay whatever they like to any kid who strikes their fancy.

BASEBALL - WHAT'S IN STORE FOR '53

BY OSCAR FRALEY

Rookies to Chase Brook Vets

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (UP)—National League challenges are counting heavily on rookies to help them overtake the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1953, a survey revealed today, with no less than 38 hopefuls given bright chances of winning their freshmen spurs under the baseball big top.

Battling to regain the flag, the Giants promise a complete overhaul with 12 prospects. The Cardinals, under aggressive Eddie Stanky, are building with nine new ones. The struggling Reds have hopes for seven, the Chicago Cubs four, and the Phillies and Braves each three.

The Dodgers aren't counting on rookies, preferring to be surprised in the spring, as they seek veteran pitching help. The Pirates will have a horde on hand but Branch Rickey's construction program won't pay off next season.

The Giants claim the top prospect in Daryl Spencer of Wichita, Kans., who batted .294 in seven games at the end of the year, the same mark he had at Minneapolis. Other new faces are outfielder Bill Taylor, 23, of Alhambra, Calif., out of the army, a .346 hitter at Sioux City in 1950; outfielder Harvey Gentry, 26, Winston-Salem, N.C., bought from Ottawa, and third baseman Rance Pless, 27, Greenville, Tenn., who led the Southern Association at Nashville with a .364 batting mark.

Reappearing, after being "up for a cup of coffee," are pitchers Roger Bowman, Jack Harshman and Mario Picone; catchers Ray Katt and Sam Calderone, first baseman Marv Blaylock and rookie Gilbert and second baseman Ron Samford.

The Cards are hopeful with four infielders: Third baseman Ray Jablonski, 25, Chicago, in international league rookie of the year at Rochester with 302 and 100 runs batted in; shortstop Wally Lammers, Hollywood, Calif., who hit .287 at Rochester, and Sherwin Dixon, 24, at Omaha, and first baseman Jam Beavers, 22, Manchester, Cal., who hit .363 in the lower minors.

St. Louis pitching hopes are Jack Fascholz, six-foot, three-inch Divinity student who was 15-8 at Rochester, and lefty Dennis Reeder, 26, who was 20-6 at Columbia, Sally League. Catcher Dick Rand, San Diego, who hit .256 at Columbus, O., is said to be ready, too. Outfield potentials are Rip Repuski, 24, Sauk Rapids, Minn., who hit .296 at Rochester, and Canadian Tom Burgess, 26, who batted .328 at Columbia, S.C.

The Braves are smiling over southpaw Don Liddle, 26, Mt. Carmel, Ill., who at Milwaukee led the association in percentage with a .810 and strikeouts, 159, as he posted a 17-4 record.

They also hope for six-foot, eight-inch right-hander Gene Conley of Richland, Wash., 11-4 at Milwaukee, and outfielder Bill Bruton, 23, of Wilmington, Del., who hit .325 at Milwaukee and is rated faster than Sam Jethroe.

The Cubs have three strapping pitchers in lefty Fred Baczewski, 26, an air force vet who was 6-4 at Shreveport; southpaw Cal Hovey, 27, who was 7-3 at Macon and righty Dick Verbit, 27, 4 and 13 at Des Moines. They also like third baseman Leon Brinkopf, 26, who smote 27 homers for Los Angeles.

Rookie of the year honors are expected by the Reds from Jim Greengrass, who in 18 games at the end of the season batted .304, hit five homers and knocked in 24 runs. He led in triples at Beaumont. Another outfield prospect is Bob Marquis, 28, who was hitting near .360 at Kansas City until he broke a wrist.

Red pitching hopes are rightie Barney Martin, 29, who was 23-7 as the Sally League's big winner at Columbia, S.C.; right-hander Ed Blake, 26, who was 10-4 at Milwaukee, and southpaw Niles Jordan, 26, Lyman, Wash., 10-12, at Tulsa with a fine era of 2.72. Catcher Hobbie Landrith, 22, Decatur, Ill., who batted .300 at Tulsa, and second baseman Johnny Temple, 23, who hit .306 at Tulsa but only .196 in 30 games with the Reds, also may make it.

The biggest hopes for rookie of the year honors are Spencer of the Giants and Greengrass of the Reds—but from the way the clubs talk you can't overlook any of these determined young men with their eyes on the stars.

STILL IN THERE — What with all the talk about television, TV vs. the movies and so on, I thought radio was getting lost in the shuffle and soon would be as outmoded as Aunt Mamie's red flannel unmentionables. Therefore I was surprised as all get out to read A. P. Wayne Oliver's quotes from the latest industry records.

Here are some of them. Take it or leave it, but radio still is out-selling television sets in the U.S. by two-to-one. What's more the offspring of the original cat's whisker continues to confound the prophets of doom by establishing new peaks in number of stations on the air, sales of broadcast time and number of sets in use—despite TV.

Against 1,100 standard radio stations and 230 FM outlets five years ago, the U.S. now has 2,333 standard stations and 635 frequency modulation stations on the air. Five years ago there were 61,000,000 radio sets in use. The present total is 105,000,000. Television's over-all total is estimated at 18,000,000.

Radio stations and networks did $374 million worth of business in broadcast time sales to sponsors in 1947. This year's total is expected to equal or surpass the record of $455 million set last year.

On TV's side of the picture, however, even with only 109 stations on the air, television already has surpassed radio in some respects in the U.S. For instance, TV has cut sharply into radio's night time audiences, a fact recognized by the networks in making 10 to 15 per cent reductions last year and further reductions by the two networks in the past little while ranging up to 30 per cent.

Nevertheless, on an overall basis, radio has continued to grow despite television, and the Federal Communications Commission has a file of more than 300 applications from persons who want to build new radio stations.

Skelton Says He's Still in Love, But Will Be Divorced

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4 (AP)

—Red Skelton says he and his second wife Georgia are getting a divorce although "I'm so much in love it's pitiful."

"But she doesn't want to be in love," Red added sadly. "I can't take it any longer."

"All I want out of life is to go in and talk to my kids. I do not want my wife to lock her door."

He had been incommunicado for several hours Wednesday in a Beverly Hills hotel suite. Finally, a phone call reached the suite. The garrulous Red's conversation was interrupted frequently. "Then it went to sleep. Advisers who had tried to keep him from saying anything quickly jumped in with a statement that the comic's views had been voiced 'in haste.' There will be no divorce, they added, 'at the moment.'"

Georgia, reached at the couple's Bel Air home, acknowledged she doesn't get along with Red, and "he doesn't get along with me."

He's Not Shy—Just Scared

"I don't wanna!" is the frantic response of Kinsmen show committee chairman, Earl Ward, to the urgings of pretty Ice Cycles of 1953 advance agent, Miss Helen Emrick. She offered to teach him some tricks. Ice Cycles' all new show comes to the Memorial Arena Jan. 12 to 17.

Ice Cycles to Benefit Kin Projects, Solarium

First night crowds at the Ice Cycles of 1953, the glamorous ice-revue playing Victoria in January, will swell the charities of the local Kinsmen and the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League.

If the sparkle and personality of the advance agent is snared by the performers, the Ice Cycles will have those two groups taking their loot home in wheelbarrows.

In town this week to beat the drum for the big "icestravaganza" is Miss Helen Emrick, and she is making louder noises of acclaim over this year's show than she did even for past spectacles.

Meeting with her to co-ordinate plans today was Earl Ward, chairman of the Kinsmen committee for the show. Miss Emrick took time out from business to give Mr. Ward a few pointers on skating.

The Pittsburgh, Pa., "publicity gal" used to skate with the ice troupe herself, but now she seldom sees the big production. Her work takes her all over the continent a month ahead of the blade artists.

Strictly a career woman, Miss Emrick says she is on the go too much to have a chance to meet a man and settle down. She will be 24 on Friday. (This will be the fourth year running that she has blown out birthday candles in Victoria.)

Miss Emrick started with the show fresh out of high school in 1946. In 1950, when the show was overseas, she had a chance to do a press release for The London Chronicle.

Cut in Money Means Cut Services Says Jubilee Hospital Official

The Royal Jubilee Hospital will make every effort to comply with new hospital cost-pegging policy, says its administrator, George E. Masters.

Health and Welfare Minister Eric Martin announced last week that the daily rates paid to hospitals by the government will not be increased during 1953.

"Hospital costs have been increasing at the rate of 1% a month," Mr. Masters said. "Due to medical advances we have been able every year to offer better services to more people. Naturally costs rise with the increased service. I hesitate to guess at the outcome of the restricted budget."

Per diem costs for 6,000 U.S. hospitals, he said, were shown to have increased from $10.48 in 1946 to $18.62 last year, increasing at the rate of about $2 per year, said the administrator. The ratio is the same here.

WAGES HELD DOWN

Although wage increases have been held to a minimum, Mr. Masters said, we have been forced by the modern trend to adopt the five-day week.

"Without assuming this policy we would be unable to attract best qualified personnel. This means an increase in either overtime or substitute staff for an extra four hours every week. We

City's Polio Cases Total 22 for Year

Twenty-two cases of polio have been reported in the Greater Victoria area this year, Dr. J. L. Gayton, city-Esquamalt medical health officer said Wednesday. The city and Esquamalt had nine, including two cases from H.M.C.S. Naden; Oak Bay, one, and Saanich 12, including a man from Nanaimo and one from Vancouver.

The isolation hospital at Jubilee is the quietest it has been in a long time," Dr. Gayton said. He reported a scarlet fever outbreak "much quieter."

Planes Crash-Sonic Barrier, Frighten Ottawa Citizens

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (BUP)—A shock wave sent earthward when an F-86 jet fighter broke through the sonic barrier in a dive high above Ottawa rattled windows and dishes and cracked plaster in at least one home Wednesday.

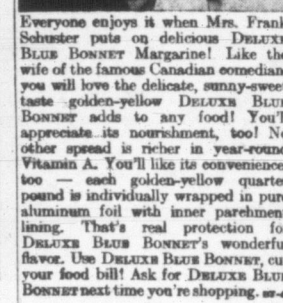

The R.C.A.F. said two planes had made the routine dives through the sonic barrier during the day. The resulting "thunderclap" from one of the planes was heard throughout the capital.

It was a new sound to Ottawa. Police reported their switchboard was jammed with calls from frightened residents who thought there had been an explosion.

Mrs. Arthur Jessup said a crack appeared in the plaster of her kitchen and that several small pieces of plaster fell from the ceiling.

Collision Fails To Halt Big Liner

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Dec. 4 (AP)—The liner Queen Elizabeth arrived today after crossing the Atlantic with a dent in her starboard bow caused by a collision with a tug in New York harbor.

Hardly anyone aboard felt the bump as the 83,000-ton liner steamed out of New York five days ago.

Temporary repairs will be made and the Queen Elizabeth will sail for New York next week on schedule.

After her return, the liner will go into drydock for annual overhauling.

Board to Oversee All Recreation Here Urged

A civic recreation commission with trained leaders to co-ordinate all recreation activities in Greater Victoria, was advocated today by John Halstead, president of Greater Victoria Recreation Council.

"The greatest recreation need of today is for more home and neighborhood playgrounds for young children to keep them off the streets," Mr. Halstead stated.

He referred to need for leadership in organizing recreational and leisure activities "for all ages."

Mr. Halstead stressed the "great shortage of playgrounds for older children, not only in Victoria but perhaps more so in surrounding municipalities."

He felt teenagers had to travel "unreasonable distances" to find a playground with suitable equipment.

Emphasizing the need for trained leaders Mr. Halstead said larger Canadian universities give "recreation and physical fitness degrees, including our own U.B.C."

"There is as much difference between trained and amateur leaders in recreation as in any other profession," said Mr. Halstead.

He said about 125 cities and towns in Canada have civic recreation commissions and added that 90 per cent of them were smaller cities than Victoria.

"Organized recreation has been greatly neglected in this district," Mr. Halstead feared that the heavy percentage of retired persons in Victoria "who pay taxes and are usually past the age of active recreation" helped create an indifferent attitude on the matter.

"One quarter of the money spent on civil defense would revolutionize recreation in Victoria, and there is another line of defense that should not be overlooked," he stated. "We have the evidence in this city of young men making nuisances of themselves because they are not better occupied and have no means of working off their energy."

Mr. Halstead said there was need of trained supervision of playgrounds.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

I understand that one of the new gadgets on next year's automobiles will be a device which will automatically dim the headlights when they meet the headlights of an oncoming car. What I would like to know is, will the device also automatically dim the headlights of the oncoming car?

From the storm-swept plains of the prairies comes a belated, but very good humored, contribution to Between Times' discussion on the subject of felines.

"You may remember that this discussion was started by the dog Punch, in my absence, and that he must accept full responsibility for it."

Major George A. Wigan writes from Eyremore, Alberta, as follows:

"As one-quarter time sojourners in the balmy sun-kissed areas of Victoria, we, well, you can dream. Major."

"and three-quarter time shivering prairie stubble jumpers, we keep up with the times through The Times and Between Times. My 'Favorite Wife' called my attention to a reprinted editorial in the Brooks Bulletin from the High River Times on cats—which is enclosed herewith for Punch's information. Sort of a 'praise Punch' gesture to help along his campaign!"

"Upon my permanent removal to Victoria to live next year, I will discuss the situation fully with Punch."

The item Major Wigan refers to follows:

NO CAT WEEK FOR CANADA

It seems like overdoing things to have a week of being kind to cats since they are so unremittably kind to themselves.

A dog week, yes; a horse week, yes; even a mouse or caterpillar week, yes. But it is so unnecessary for cats, which are the embodiment of individualism and self-seeking; ever superior and inscrutable.

If there is one creature on earth adept at looking after herself it is the cat.

She manages her affairs and all of her nine lives more competently than human beings do theirs. If Canada ever takes up this cat week, it is to be hoped it will be one week for cats to be kind to man.

No thieving from the larder, nor gouging claws, no sneaking and holding the best chair in the house, no yammering on the back fence in the moonlight, no careless abandonment of a good home for a better home.

That would be the week!

Opinions expressed in the foregoing are not necessarily those of the management of this newspaper, the operator of this column, or, in fact, anybody.

The question about the forthcoming civic elections is not only how they will turn out.

The question also is, who will they turn out to vote, that is.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

The open shelf and traveling libraries division of the Public Library Commission will make a donation to the benevolent fund of the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

This move is being taken in place of the usual staff Christmas party.

National snooker champion George Chenier, now living in Victoria, will display his "talent" at the pool table for Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Several club members will challenge Mr. Chenier in exhibition games.

The club's annual nomination meeting will be held Dec. 18 at 8 p.m.—Christmas bridge, snooker, cribbage and billiard tournaments are now under way.

Head of B.C. civil defense, Maj. Gen. C. R. S. Stein, is featured in the November issue of the federal government "Civil Defense Bulletin." A message by General Stein calling for man-in-the-street participation in defense is carried in the paper. Major Stein directs provincial activities from Victoria.

New Sacred W. A. Scott, an unsuccessful independent candidate in the June election, has asked the party to send him to China as a one-man peace and trade mission.

Mr. Scott, an employee of the Chinese government for 22 years, noted that national Social Credit leader Solon Low had agreed to the principle of re-establishing peaceful trade with China.

Ward Five Liberal Association elected E. Lehman president at the annual meeting Wednesday evening.

Vice-president is H. Meyers, and other officers are: Treasurer, Mrs. J. Nelson; secretary, E. M. Whyte; executive committee, J. A. Worthington, W. H. Giles, Mrs. A. Norris, Mrs. J. Bryden, Mrs. E. Lehman and Mrs. R. Paderny.

The central executive for the coming year will be Mr. Lehman. Mr. Worthington, Mrs. Nelson and Mr. Whyte.

G. A. A. Hebdon was guest speaker at the meeting.

For the first time in the memory of veteran shipping men, a freighter flying the green, white and orange flag of Eire is at Ogden Point.

Ss. Irish Plane, owned by the Irish Shipping Co., Dublin, docked Wednesday night and this morning commenced lifting lumber for South Africa.

The ship is as Irish as her name (which is written in letters of green on bow and stern), and her crew is Irish to the last man.

Her master is Capt. Thomas Glanville, her first officer, Bernard Riley. They'll sail her from South Africa to Baltimore and then home. If their luck holds, they'll be in Ireland by the 17th of next March.

Irish Plane is three years old, built in West Hartlepool, she will likely finish for sea here Saturday morning.

"The troubles a young girl can get into these days!" That seems to be two-year-old Linda Bonner's reflection as she holds sink drain like the one which gave her a bad time for two hours Wednesday night. (Times photo.)

HACKSAW FOR OPERATION

Tots Fingers Stick In Drain From Sink

A two-year-old withstood an emergency operation at Jubilee Hospital Wednesday night, without benefit of anaesthetic, and the cutting instrument was a hacksaw in the hands of the hospital engineer.

The tiny patient was Linda Susan Bonner, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Bonner, 1504 Thorncliffe Road.

Amputated by "surgeon-engineer" S. Witherow, 1749 Fairfield Road, was the drain from the Bonner kitchen sink.

When Linda's three fingers were sucked down by the water running out of her sink-bath and all efforts to dislodge them failed, it was lucky that "Daddy" was a plumber. The whole sink didn't have to go to hospital.

After almost two hours of frantic effort a specially filed hack-saw blade severed the drain and released the tot's swollen fingers. The "operation" was slowed by the "doctor's" need to watch his bolters.

Harried emergency personnel are still able to say they have had everything but the kitchen sink.

Constable Norman Galbraith told the court that after Finlay's car had collided with the bus, driven by war veteran James T. Hassell, 2572 Prior, the accused got out of his vehicle, jumped a low fence and ran north through Gladwell Motors' used car lot.

"Two passengers in the bus got out and went in pursuit of the fleeing driver and caught him at Amelia and Mason, one and one-half blocks from the scene," the officer said.

When Const. Galbraith appeared on the scene, the driver was turned over to him. He was arrested and spent the night in jail.

Small Field Runs In Municipal Race

Police Commissioners, Trustees Elected By Acclamation Here

Nominations closed today in Victoria and the four surrounding municipalities, revealing a small field of contestants for posts of aldermen, councillors, police commissioners and school trustees.

Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich each elected a school trustee and police commissioner by acclamation while Central Saanich elected a commissioner by acclamation.

Victoria will vote December 11 and the municipalities December 13.

Oak Bay returning officer A. D. Findlay reported four candidates have come forward for three vacant council seats.

They are: F. A. Robinson, general contractor and the only candidate at present serving on the council; W. G. Ellis, office manager; G. F. T. Gregory, barrister and solicitor, and S. Patrick Birley, architect.

Police commissioner, A. B. Longridge, and school trustee, W. H. Golby, both nominated for re-election, were unopposed and elected by acclamation.

ESQUIMALT

Polls closed at Esquimalt with the following nominations filed: For three council seats: Walter Holder, contractor; J. E. Carey, civil servant, and J. Bryant, machinist, all council members at present; Anne Patterson Smith, housewife.

Esquimalt followed Oak Bay in that both police commissioner, Norman W. Patterson, and school trustee, Henry Richmond Reeve, were returned to their offices unopposed. Mr. Reeve is chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board.

SAANICH

In Saanich five candidates have their hats in the ring for three vacant seats on the council.

Returning officer John Tribe reported two councillors filed nomination papers for re-election. Councillor Grace Shaw, whose term of office expires this year, did not file papers, and will not be running for office.

School trustees and a police commissioner were all unopposed and elected by acclamation.

Nomination papers for council seats were filed by: Councillor G. Stanley Eden, businessman; Councillor E. P. Cummins, carpenter; Henry Robinson, diary-man; Harold Todd, postal employee, and George Austin, retired, former Saanich councillor. Mrs. Gertrude E. McGill was elected by acclamation as a school trustee for School District No. 61 for a two-year term.

Reginald Sinkinson was elected as trustee for School District No. 63 for a two-year term, and George Chatterton for a one-year term on the same board.

George Askey was elected police commissioner.

CENTRAL SAANICH

In Central Saanich, Reeve Sydney Pickles and E. L. Thomson, retired farmer, filed nomination papers for the office of reeveship.

Four candidates filed nomination papers for two vacancies on the Central Saanich Council: Raymond Lamont, farmer; Willard W. Michell, farmer; Charles T. D. Whitehouse, civil servant; A. H. O. Bolster, garage operator.

George D. Moody, generating station superintendent, was elected by acclamation as police commissioner for a two-year term and Cyril A. Dadds for a one-year term.

VICTORIA CITY

Thirteen persons filed nomination papers for seven offices in the city election.

Eight filed for four aldermanic seats. They are: Aldermen Arthur Dowell, J. Donald Smith, Frank Mulliner, Robert Macmillan and Jim Neely and Millard Mooney, Harry Haigh and Mrs. Jane Freedman.

Two school board seats will be contested by Trustees Austin L. Curtis and Mrs. D. P. W. Maunsell with Harold Whitfield, newcomer, Gordon Carter and John McLeellan both seek the one vacancy on police commission.

Driver Fined When Pedestrians Hurt

For failure to yield the right-of-way to pedestrians on a crosswalk, motorist Steven F. Showers, 575 Walter, received a $50 fine from Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today.

Private interests would finance a servicemen's hostel in Victoria if a liquor license could be secured, according to Commodore Kenneth F. Adams, commander of the naval barracks here.

The statement was made at a public meeting in City Hall Wednesday night, called by a special committee of city council, with Ald. James Neely as chairman.

But it was clear that a hostel serving liquor would meet with opposition.

Said Major Cliff Milley, Salvation Army representative at the meeting: "Servicemen have problems that are not solved by a glass of liquor. Forget about opening a place where a man can get a drink. There are too many places around this town where men can get plastered."

The meeting was in agreement that a hostel is needed here, and approved a motion to appoint a committee which would explore possibilities of establishing a hostel as a memorial to King George VI. The motion was made by J. A. Bland, representing the Native Sons of B.C.

Named to the committee were: Mr. Bland, Major Milley, Commodore Adams, Ald. Brent Murdoch, P. H. Barr (Canadian Legion), Forrest L. Shaw (Navy League of Canada) and Reeve A. C. Wurtele, of Esquimalt.

Frisky Frog Will Thrill 'Children' of All Ages!

By PENNY SAVER

In my column yesterday I began to list a few of the toys I discovered during a visit to toyland with my nephew.

When he wasn't busy trying out the toys he called my attention to one he thought I should tell you about.

This was the case with "Frisky Freddy," the frog. Freddy has a dark green plastic skin and if treated kindly will hop all over the floor to the delight of the kiddies.

Freddy is so realistic that many have said he is more of a pet than a toy. He hops so nimbly the children leap and shout with glee. The friendly little frog has a price tag marked at $1.98. When my nephew tried this next article he just about jumped out of his skin. It is called "Jack in the Barrel." It works on the same principle as a Jack-in-the-box except that the case is a plastic barrel. You just pull a knob to release Jack and he'll pop up with a squeak. This novel toy is priced at $1.29.

Many people like to buy a toy that is educational, durable and interesting. The take-apart dolly cart, a pull-toy for preschool children fills the bill. It sells for $1.50.

Urge Junior to save pennies by buying him a bank. Plastic banks in the shape of a pig, dog, duck, clock, boot and other shapes, sell from 29 pennies.

A grand gift for a little girl would be the musical sweeper. It really picks up the dirt and plays "Whistle While You Work." as it rolls along. Sells for $2.50.

A fascinating toy for a small child is the whirl drops made of plastic which gleam in colored plastic as the little one turns the handle. Priced at $1.19.

My young companion thought this item was an excellent idea. A washable rag book that tells a story about bears. Made in England, it is selling for 49 cents.

He went into complete ecstasies over a clown that played the most delightful tune when you turned his nose. This new arrival is priced at $6.50.

There are dozens and dozens of other delightful toys for the young folk which you will discover when you visit toyland.

St. John's Christmas Bazaar Realized $750

A gay Christmas setting was created in the parish hall of St. John's Anglican Church yesterday when the ladies' guild staged their annual bazaar which realized more than $750.

Alderman Frank Mulliner opened the affair and guests were received by Mrs. R. A. Bell.

Civic Affairs Group Is Formed In Women's Club

To create among women generally an active interest in civic affairs, including municipal, provincial and federal governments, a new civic affairs group has been formed in the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club. Miss Verna Beck is president and Miss Ella Brett secretary.

Guest speaker at first meeting of the group on Tuesday evening in the clubroom was Alderman Margaret Christie, who spoke informally of her work at city hall in health and welfare departments.

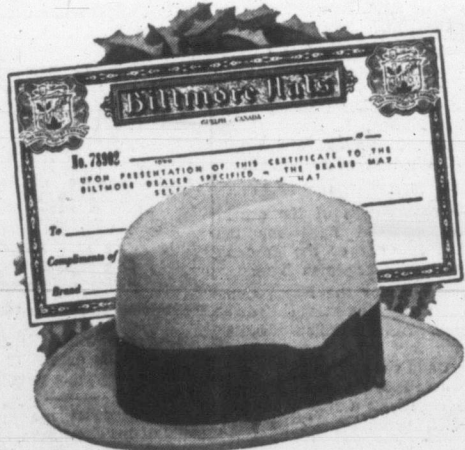

The speaker gave a description of the Aged Women's Home, the Victoria Nursing Home, the Wellcome Room, Mountain View Home and the Juvenile Detention Home, and explained various phases of work in each place.

AS WE LIVE

Large Age Differences Make Many Problems in Marriage

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

An age difference between husband and wife may or may not mean happiness. It depends mainly on attitudes. The woman who wrote the following letter wonders if it is wise for her to marry a man much younger than she. She asks:

(Q)—"I am single and 40, but everyone tells me I look much younger. In my office there is a 25-year-old bachelor who has become very fond of me in the last year and has asked me to marry him. He is very mature and understanding for his age. He thinks I am only 36. The only thing that bothers me is my age. I think I'm too old for him but he insists that I'm not. Do you know of any successful marriages where a woman is 15 years older than her husband?"

(A)—A recent study has shown that for second marriages, women in the fifties and sixties more often marry much younger men than men of their own ages. For first marriages, women usually marry men older than they or of their own ages.

We have no statistics on happiness in marriages where there is such a marked age difference as 15 years but chances would seem against a happy marriage at your age.

Because you are fast approaching "change of life," you will soon be showing your age more than you are now. The man who has asked you to marry him will still look like a young man when you will look decidedly middle-aged.

Another aspect is the possibility of children. After 40, it becomes unwise for a woman to have her first child. Would this man be satisfied with a childless marriage?

Don't let him think you are younger than you are. Sooner or later he will discover the truth. Tell him your true age now and discuss with him the problems such a marriage would bring. Then let him decide if he wants to take the chance.

Elizabeth Hurlock is one of the nation's great psychologists, and she will gladly help you with personal problems.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Are Two-Thirds Water; Stay That Way—Drink Plenty

You and I are all wet!

If we lost all of the water content in our bodies there would be only one-third of us left. We are two-thirds water. We hear over and over again that it is important for best health to drink an adequate amount of water. However, this is one rule most of us forget, especially in cold weather.

The best general rule seems to be a minimum of six glasses of liquid daily. This can include milk, tea, coffee and other beverages. For best condition you probably should have more.

Did I ever tell you the story of the woman who was told at a clinic to drink from six to eight glasses of water daily? The next day her husband called frantically and told the nurse that his wife was in terrible pain, that the doctor must come immediately. The nurse inquired as to the food she had eaten. The husband replied: "It's just that water. She got up to her 40th glass and was seized with these pains."

There are differing opinions as to whether water should or should not be drunk at mealtime. It doesn't seem to make a great deal of difference. It is wise not to drink much water later in the evening because this often causes restless sleep.

Too small a fluid intake is one reason for constipation. This plus lack of exercise and a diet which is too refined and concentrated, thus providing too little bulk, are three of the most important factors in this trouble. So—with winter weather upon us, and with little inclination to drink water, remember its importance in your health.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Vitamin Defense" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Guest Artist at Concert

"I wish to keep on playing the piano forever," this talented young pianist says. (Photo by Jack Cash.)

Miss Nora von Haimberger, who, with Victoria pianist Charles Palmer, will play two concertos for two pianos with orchestra, at Monday's concert of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, in the Royal Theatre.

The young pianist came from Germany two years ago to join her brother Hans (in background of picture) on a dairy farm near Duncan. She taught piano and music appreciation in Duncan to more than 40 pupils, many of whom are coming by special bus to Victoria on Sunday to attend the symphony rehearsal concert.

The Haimberger family home was near Salzburg, Austria, before the war, but Miss Haimberger's musical education was in Berlin under the famed Russian pianist Horowitz, before and after the war.

Her correct title is Baroness von Haimberger, although she has dropped it in this country.

The family, known as the Austrian Haimbergers, have been lawmakers and bankers and were ennobled in 1840, being given the prefix "von." Her mother was a niece of the composer Felix Mendelssohn; her father was president of the international chamber of commerce; and her grandfather was banker to the Tsar.

Following the concert on Monday, the young pianist expects to travel to Fort St. John to spend Christmas with her brother, who is now homesteading in northern British Columbia.

Dean Beattie Opens Guild Bazaar At St. George's Church, Cadboro Bay

Wreaths of greens, entwined with colored lights and silver ribbon, over doors and around windows, and cedar and holly decorating stalls, gave a festive air to the parish hall at Church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay, Wednesday afternoon.

Occasion was the annual Christmas bazaar, given by the Ladies' Guild, which realized more than $750.

Dean P. R. Beattie, introduced by Rev. William Hills, officially opened the affair at 2:15. Miss L. Worsley and N. Plinter, candy, Una McAnnally, guild president and bazaar convener, received the visitors.

Afternoon tea, served at small tables decorated with sprays of greenery and Christmas baubles, was in charge of Mrs. C. H. Ren- nie, assisted by Mesdames E. J. Harwood, G. F. Gregory, R. L. Mitchell, J. Gooderham, F. Corbett, C. E. Price, Rivett-Carnac, G. MacNeill, R. Spicer, S. F. Ford, E. W. Marshall, G. W. Grover, A. Edmonds, R. McKay, L. Royle, W. Adamson and Miss Peggy Marshall.

Conveners of stalls and assistants were: Babywear, Mesdames R. W. Matthews, C. M. Martin, E. D. Jones, B. Turner and R. Drewry; fancy work, Mesdames A. V. Chase, W. W. Melville, C. L. Worsley and N. Plinter; candy, Mrs. H. T. MacGregor and Mrs. L. Kelley; Christmas cake, Mrs. H. A. Chisholm and Mrs. J. H. Stubbs; aprons, Mesdames W. G. Gairard, G. M. Stewart and T. Lee; figurines, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. After, check-your-parcels, assisted by Mesdames E. J. Harwood, G. F. Gregory, R. L. Mitchell, J. Gooderham, F. Corbett, C. E. Price, Rivett-Carnac, G. MacNeill, R. Spicer, S. F. Ford, E. W. Marshall, G. W. Grover, A. Edmonds, R. McKay, L. Royle, W. Adamson and Miss Peggy Marshall.

Following a honeymoon in La Jolla, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick James Brewin will make their home in this city.

Rev. Moir A. J. Waters officiated at the ceremony in First United Church for the former Frances Corinne DuVal, daughter of Mrs. Edward W. DuVal, London, Eng., and late Mr. DuVal, and the son of late Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Brewin, London, Eng.

Standard baskets of bronze and pink chrysanthemums and lighted candles in wrought-iron candelabra decorated the church. Mrs. J. Roberto Wood played organ music as the bride walked up the aisle on the arm of Dr. W. G. Wilson.

She wore an imported gown of French champagne lace over peach slipper satin with off the shoulder neckline trimmed with seed pearls.

Her chapel veil of illusion net, hand appliqued with roses of matching lace, misted from a shell shaped collar of lace. She carried a cascade of talisman roses and feathered bronze chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor, Mrs. James V. Henderson, wore a gown of cinnamon nylon-net over rose and gold short taffeta with matching headress. She carried a bouquet of bronze and pale pink chrysanthemums.

Col. Eric Parker was best man, and ushers were Major S. G. Dobbie and Mr. James V. Henderson.

Dr. W. G. Wilson proposed the toast at a reception in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

For traveling the bride wore a sapphire blue wool crepe dress under a blue double-breasted coat with mother-of-pearl button trim to brighten your afternoon and AFTER-FIVE HOURS...

At Scurra's of course you'll find the finest selection of Holiday Dresses ever in shown in Victoria. The beauty of the fabrics, the elegant manner in which they have been created for unforgettable evenings.

Church Leader Urges Aggressive Liquor Fight

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (CP)—An official of the United Church of Canada says temperance forces should rely on "militancy" rather than education to combat the use of liquor.

"It will be 100 years before we get anywhere if we depend on education," Rev. W. G. Berry of Toronto, associate secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social service, said Wednesday.

His protest was made to the annual convention of the Canadian Temperance Federation.

"It is a dangerous assumption to believe that if people know what is the right thing to do they will do it," Mr. Berry said. "There isn't enough militancy. What we ought to do is to launch an aggressive campaign to urge people to refrain from the use of alcoholic beverages."

WALL OF PREJUDICE OR IRON CURTAIN?

War in Korea Vital to Chinese

Exclusive on Vancouver Island

Following is one of a series of articles by a well-known Montreal editor and publisher who spent September behind the Iron Curtain with an invitation to the World Peace Congress in Peking. Filion is editor of Le Devoir, a French language newspaper noted for its controversial attitude on current problems.

By GERARD FILION

The Korean War is an insignificant matter to us. It does not disturb our sleep. It merely makes us feel a bit uncomfortable.

The Korean war is a serious matter to the Chinese. It is a very great war and the Chinese are immensely proud of the fact that they pushed the United Nations troops back to the 38th parallel. They almost believe that the West has thrown all its strength into the Korean war and that they have been able to repel the whole white race by themselves.

The Chinese, therefore, take the news from Korea very seriously. It is not hard to understand why. They remember that the Japanese entered Manchuria from Korea and that they pushed down China as far as Peking. They are afraid that the Americans will do the same thing. That is why they stepped in when MacArthur's armies reached the Yalu River.

You only have to be in Peking to understand that Korea is simply just around the corner. American fliers can reach the city in two hours. It is just as though Chinese armies had entered Montreal, Washington and New York would begin to feel nervous.

The Korean war, therefore, was the principal topic of discussion at the Peking Peace Congress. It came up in every debate in a dozen different ways. Every speaker—and there were something like 25 of them—devoted about a third of his talk to the Korean war.

YELLOW RACES AGREE

One thing became clear to those of us who followed the debates and talked with delegates between sessions. That was that the yellow races were unanimously against the United Nations intervention in Korea. There was no question of whether the landing of U.N. troops in South Korea was legally justifiable. They were not interested in finding out whether North or South Korea had started the hostilities. They remembered only one thing: the white race and the whites mean U.N. troops—machine-gunned and bombarded the yellow peoples, the North Koreans. That was how they saw it and they didn't look any further.

In an earlier article I mentioned that the majority of delegates from India, Pakistan and Ceylon were right-wingers. But on the issue of the Korean war, Nehru's admirers took exactly the same stand as the Communists. The useless Korean war must be stopped at once and white troops must be withdrawn from the country.

HATRED OF AMERICANS

This feeling that the Korean war was useless seemed to be in the unanimous among the Asiatic peoples. There was another, no less general, opinion. And that was hatred of the United States. Since June 21, 1950, the American has come to personify western imperialism in Asiatic eyes. The buzzard, the vulture, he who is accused of all the crimes of Israel, is Mr. Truman, Mr. Acheson, the capitalist of Wall Street, the American dollar. They are held responsible for everything: for war, of course, but also for famine, drought, the plague of locusts. If anything goes wrong, the American is the scapegoat.

Beside the war in Korea, the American dollar and the American dollar are certainly insignificant. They were discussed, to be sure, and both French and British imperialism was denounced, but it was hastily pointed out that these imperialist powers would fall of their own accord if they were not maintained in power by Washington.

As far back of 1950 I wrote that Moscow would use the Korean war to turn the yellow races against the United States. Now that I have returned from the Far East, my belief has been strengthened. In 1950, the United States prestige was intact in the Orient. The yellow races looked to Washington for aid in their political and economic liberation. Today, the

A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, December 4th—Something special for your baby—a plastic Baby Tumbler that teaches him to drink from a cup without spilling a drop. What's more, it's yours for just 25¢ with the labels from 6 tins of HEINZ BABY FOODS or 3 tins of HEINZ BABY CEREALS. Write to me—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. Heinz Baby Foods are "something special" for baby, too. You see, Heinz Strained Baby Foods—meat food products, soups, vegetables and desserts—are expertly blended to give your tiny tot the extra nourishment he needs. And they're all pre-cooked in Heinz spotless kitchens. All you do, mother, is take them from the tin, heat and serve.

Which Is Best? That's a question that's really important when it comes to selecting the right tissues for make-up use. So I gave the leading brands the "dressing-table test." Try it yourself... next time you're applying make-up or removing cold cream, use an ordinary 2-ply tissue for one cheek and a 3-ply cushion Face-Elle for the other. Note how the FACE-ELLE tissue holds together to do the job without muss or fuss! Contrast that with tissue that splits and where finger-tips poke through even with light rubbing. There is evidence of the extra strength of Face-Elle's 3-PLY thickness... the only 3-ply tissues in Canada! And compare it for softness too... there just isn't any other tissue to equal that gentle easy-on-the-skin caress of Face-Elle.

Wonderful Way To Relax after Christmas shopping... just make yourself a cup or two of INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE. It's so quick and easy to make... takes no longer than heating the water! And it's so good. You see, Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee is made by real coffee people. The flavour's there—and the body—and the real lift. And something else you'll like about it is that it's truly economical. I save up to 40¢ a pound compared with ground coffee. Yes, the regular size jar of Instant Chase & Sanborn gives me the same number of cups as a pound of ground coffee—but what a difference in price!

"I Can't Remember When my family have been more enthusiastic about a breakfast food!" writes a reader about "CREAM OF WHEAT". Yes, Quick "Cream of Wheat" is truly a family "favourite"... a delicious way to wake up early-morning sleepyheads. It cooks to satiny-smoothness in just five minutes of boiling. And, you'll agree, it's delicious. Good for you—for, in addition to other benefits, Quick "Cream of Wheat" provides Iron, Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements... and all for less than a bowl of cereal. Particularly good, I find, topped with stewed fruit or raisins, sugar and cream.

It's Been A Tradition in our family since grandma's day... old-fashioned bean soup. Except that Heinz has made a big difference in the way I cook beans. No all-day slaving over a huge old range... I simply empty a can or two of HEINZ OVEN-BAKED BEANS in a casserole, flip a switch, and within a matter of minutes the family is enjoying a bean treat. Every bit as good as grandma's... in fact, grandma herself has been heard to say that Heinz beans are the tastiest she ever eaten. Yes, any night is Heinz night in our house. You see, there are now five kinds of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans—the latest, Heinz Oven-Baked Beans with sliced Wieners. Look for them when you're shopping.

It's What The Well-Dressed Man will be wearing in '53... so do be sure to Christmas-gift your husband with a B.V.D. NYLON TRICOT SHIRT. He'll be proud of you for knowing just what he wants for Christmas! Made of comfortable, good-looking nylon tricot—with fused nylon collars and cuffs that never wilt—B.V.D. Nylon Shirts always look neat and trim—without ironing. Just think of the time and money you'll save! Laundering's no problem at all... just a quick rinse, wait awhile, and the shirt is ready to wear. So take my tip. Get your husband a handsome, long-wearing B.V.D. Nylon Tricot Shirt for Christmas ($12.95 in blue, tan, grey or white).

Youngsters Love Having Savings Accounts of their very own. I remember last year when I gave a BANK OF MONTREAL Christmas Passbook to my best friend's little girl. She loved the Christmassy design on the outside, but was a little puzzled until we explained to her that the passbook meant that she had a B of M Savings Account of her very own. Inside the passbook cover, sure enough, there was the amount marked that I'd deposited for her. Money in the bank at her age? You should have seen her eyes sparkle, and her mother told me she slept with her passbook under her pillow that night. She's an enthusiastic, regular saver now. I hear. So, if you want to surprise your youngsters with a very special present (and one that's character-building, too), give them a B of M Savings Account this year! Drop into your neighborhood branch tomorrow—and cross another name off your Christmas shopping list.

Here's Extra Protection For You! Your favourite BLUE BONNET DE LUXE MARGARINE now has each golden-yellow quarter pound individually wrapped in pure aluminum foil with inner parchment lining. Really De Luxe protection for Blue Bonnet's De Luxe, sunny-sweet flavour. You'll find De Luxe Blue Bonnet extra convenient, too. Just unwrap what you need and serve. No slicing, scooping, or re-wrapping. And you can forget your measuring cup when cooking. The handy chart on the package shows exactly where to cut for recipes. Ask for De Luxe Blue Bonnet Margarine, and get all these "De Luxe" advantages—De Luxe quality, too.

There's No Getting Around It. The Christmas season starts earlier every year. Friends you haven't seen for ages start calling, and the coffee pot seems to always be on the stove, ready for quick refreshment. Most times, you're all set if you just have cake 'n' coffee. And I know nothing pleases our Christmas callers more than a delicious Swans Down cake. Cakes made with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR have a way of making any occasion something very special. No cake mix, no other flour can do for a cake what Swans Down does. That's because Swans Down is especially made for better cake baking. It's a good idea to be sure to have Swans Down Cake Flour on hand these coming weeks. You will get up to six cakes from one package.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Angina Victims Can Adjust to Exertion

BY EDWIN F. JORDAN, M.D.

Translated into English, angina pectoris means pain in the chest. This common disorder is caused by a diseased condition of the arteries which supply blood to the heart muscle.

These blood vessels are called the coronary arteries. When not enough blood passes through them to supply the needs of the heart muscle, pain develops in the chest or nearby.

In angina the coronary arteries do allow some blood to pass through. Consequently, the pain usually does not develop when the person is resting or exercising only slightly; it comes on when the heart muscle is working harder and needs greater quantities of blood.

A person who has angina pectoris thus has to learn how much exertion he or she can take without producing symptoms. Symptoms, in addition to the pain, often include a feeling of anxiety, sweating and shortness of breath.

PROSPECTS ALTER

In years gone by it was often thought that a person with angina pectoris could not live long and could not avoid suffering great discomfort. Both of these frightening beliefs have proved highly pessimistic.

Most angina victims, if they get proper treatment and adjust their activities, can enjoy life as much as before and have little discomfort and that only rarely.

The outlook for life is not nearly so dismal as was formerly believed. The average life expectancy after the first signs of angina is about eight to 10 years, and many live for more than 25 years.

In addition to the better outlook which is now recognized, methods of improved management are being developed constantly.

ADAPT TO ABILITY

The amount and kind of exercise can be closely adapted to the patient's ability and this is made possible in part by the newer methods of finding out how severe the underlying process really is.

Until research workers have discovered a means of preventing hardening of the arteries, angina pectoris will continue to occur. One should realize, however, that while angina is a serious condition, it does not mean the end of all good things. Sensible adjustment to the new circumstances is necessary, of course, but usually this can be accomplished with great success.

Ceylon Post For Saanich Agriculturist

Dr. William Newton, a specialist at the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton, in the fight against virus disease in plants, has been appointed to a United Nations Agricultural Advisory Board in Ceylon, it was learned today.

Dr. Newton plans to leave for Ceylon early next year. He will serve in an advisory capacity with the agriculture department of the Ceylon Government for an indefinite period.

Before going to Ceylon, Dr. Newton will go to Rome, headquarters of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, for a 10-day briefing period.

As a scientist, Dr. Newton is well known throughout Canada for his studies in plant disease control. His studies of plant diseases include those affecting potatoes, tomatoes, hops, bulbs and other farm crops. The loganberry wine industry has also benefited appreciably from his work.

Oak Bay Faces Damage Action

Mrs. Edith M. Cuppage who fell from a roadside into an open drainage ditch in Oak Bay last month has advised the municipal council that she will seek damages for injury received.

Municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave called the incident "a borderline case."

Mrs. Cuppage, according to her legal representatives, was walking on Nottingham Road near Dewdney, when to avoid oncoming traffic, she stepped to the side of the road and plunged into an open drainage ditch.

Extent of Mrs. Cuppage's injuries were not stated, but the ditch was described as "negligently and carelessly uncovered, unattended and unlighted."

Oak Bay Finances Reported Sound

Oak Bay municipal finances will not be "in the red" at year's end according to C. R. B. Wilson who reported to the Oak Bay Council for the finance committee Wednesday.

He praised the municipal engineering department for keeping within the budget.

The final picture will not be known until the Social Security and Municipal Aid tax rebates are received later this month. Last year's returns from this source totaled $59,000, he said.

The world's hottest spot the year around is the island of Masawa, in the Red Sea. The mean annual temperature is about 86 degrees.

Unions Deny Peace Parley Association

Elgin Neish, member of the Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union (T.L.C.), did not attend the recent "peace" conference at Peking as the representative of any organized trade union.

Greater Victoria Trades' and Labor Council went on record to this effect Wednesday night after Neish's public statements and writings on his return to Canada had been castigated by Stuckey Harris, B.C.E. office workers' delegate.

Delegate Harris said he had attended a meeting called by Neish to report on the Peking conference and had drawn from his admissions that his sponsorship was the Victoria Peace Council, not the Fishermen's Union nor any other branch of organized labor.

"He didn't talk much about peace," said Mr. Harris, "but he did give a glowing report of economic conditions in China."

"He also talked about evidence that the Yanks were using germ warfare against the North Koreans, but when I asked him if he had talked to any Americans who had supposedly confessed to it, he said he had his information from the Chinese officials."

"It was the same sort of propaganda we got from the Nazis," he said.

Council voted to send letters to Victoria newspapers disavowing any connection with Mr. Neish's trip to China.

"Raisin tarts" are ever so delicious. See how simple they are to prepare: Line eight-muffin pans with half recipe plain pastry. Combine 1½ cups seedless raisins, 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons brown sugar, and fill pastry-lined muffin pans. Bake in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Three of Four Drivers Hurt in Traffic Mishaps

Three car drivers suffered injuries in two collisions on city and Saanich streets and the Island Highway Wednesday afternoon and night.

Damage to vehicles was extensive in three crashes.

Victor Midgley, 3300 Whittier, is still in Jubilee Hospital in "fairly good" condition with head and knee injuries sustained at 1.45 p.m. Wednesday when the car he was driving was in collision with one driven by William O. Mooney, Sidney, at Dunedin and Sumas.

Mooney was treated in hospital for head injuries but was not admitted.

City police said the Midgley car came to rest against a telephone pole, his vehicle winding up on the lawn of the home at 544 Dunedin.

Considerable damage was done to the Midgley car; moderate damage to the other.

COLWOOD CRASH

Parker Stephenson, 25 Claude Road, Ladang, was treated for lacerations by Dr. George A.

Fumes Made Man Stagger, Judge Dismisses Charge

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 4 (AP)—Edward Tillman Jr., 27, denied he ever took a drink when he appeared in court on a drunkenness charge.

"How come you were staggering then?" asked Judge Andrew A. Glenn.

Tillman explained his employer had told him to mix two quarts of wood alcohol with three gallons of water for a window washing chore and he got the formula wrong.

"Case dismissed," said the judge after learning from a doctor that the fumes from three gallons of wood alcohol most certainly would make a man stagger.

Symphony Carnival's Costumes in Theme

Plaid shirts and green eye shades will replace the usual more formal attire of the group attending Victoria Symphony affairs when the Symphony women's committee stage their "Carnival Night" on Saturday at Badminton Hall.

As a fund-raising venture for Victoria Symphony Orchestra the entertainment will include square dancing, games, stalls and refreshments.

The sponsors and their husbands who serve in the stalls will be arrayed in slacks, loud shirts, skirts and the traditional gambler's eye shades to carry out the carnival scheme. Door prizes will be featured.

137 $1,000 BILLS

Recluse Had $200,000 Fortune

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (UP)—Police assembled the strange life history today of a 65-year-old recluse who dropped dead in his furnished room Wednesday night and left a quarter-million-dollar fortune in his closet.

Roger Stewart, who had enough money to do as he pleased, died alone in a $25-a-month room surrounded by a threadbare wardrobe and a collection of mementos of the past.

In his closet, packed neatly in a brown Gladstone bag, police found more than $200,000 in cash and an undetermined amount in jewelry and securities.

The packet of currency found in the closet contained one $10,000 bill, 137 $1,000 bills, 74 $500 bills and 171 $100 bills. There also were certificates for 131 shares of stock in the Singer Sewing Machine Co. and an assortment of diamond rings, watches and other jewelry.

Charles Stewart, 56, of New York, told police he was Roger's brother and saw him about five months ago.

He said Roger periodically would take a subway into Manhattan and seat himself on the steps of the New York Public Library. He would ask members of his family to meet him there for a chat, but otherwise they never saw him.

Charles said he never understood why Roger withdrew from society. He led an active life until a few years ago, having traveled throughout the world.

Charles said his brother told him once: "I saw and did all I wanted. Now I want to take things slow."

Now I want to take things slow."

Now I want to take things slow."

Now I want to take things slow."

THE CAINE MUTINY

Thirty-ninth installment from the book THE CAINE MUTINY, copyright, 1951, by Herman Wouk. Distributed by Doubleday Syndicate.

"Nobody will hang but me," said Maryk to the officers. "This is my act, taken without any body's advice, under Article 184, and if I've misapplied Article 184, I'll get hung for it. Meantime all of you take my orders. There's nothing else you can do. I've taken command, I've ballasted on my own responsibility, the ship is on the course I ordered—"

"Mr. Maryk!" Stilwell shouted. "Something up ahead, a ship or something, close aboard, sir!"

Maryk whirled, squinted out through the windows, and grabbed at the telegraph handles, hurling Queeg roughly aside. The captain staggered and grasped a window handle. "Hard right rudder!" the exec shouted, ringing up full astern on both engines.

Visibility had improved so that the sea was in sight through the driving spray some 50 yards beyond the bows. A vast dim red shape bobbed on the black swells, slightly to port.

The Caine veered quickly, shoved sideways by the wind as soon as it turned a little. The thing drifted closer. It was immense, long and narrow, longer than the Caine itself, bright red. Waves were breaking over it in showers of foam.

"Holy Mother of God," said Keeler. "It's the bottom of a ship."

Everybody stared in awe at the horror. It slipped slowly down the port side, endlessly long and red, rolling gently under the breaking waves. "Destroyer," Harding said in a choked voice.

The Caine was moving well clear of it. Part of the wreck was already gone in the gloom.

"Well circle," said Maryk. "All engines ahead full. Willie."

It took 40 minutes for the Caine to manoeuvre through a full circle around the lost ship against wind and waves, and all the time it wallowed and thrashed as badly as it had been doing since morning, and took several terrible rolls to leeward.

The exec was out on the wing, shielding his eyes from the hurrying spray with both hands, peering around at the heaving spires of black water, as the Caine steadied on north again. He came into the wheelhouse, trailing streams from his clothes. "We'll come around once more and then quit," he said. "I think it's gone under. I can't see it—Left standard rudder."

The door of the radar shack pushed open, and the telephone talker, Grubnecker, poked out his whiskered face. "Something that looks like a raft on the starboard quarter, sir, Chief Bellison reports."

At first they saw nothing but peaks and troughs of water veiled by spray; then, broad on the beam, as the Caine rose to the top of a swell, they both spied a black dot sliding down the slant of a wave.

"I think there's three guys on it!" shrieked Willie. He danced aft to the flagbag rails for a better look.

Queeg stood in the doorway, face to face with the executive officer. "Well, Maryk, what are you waiting for? How about rigging your cargo net to starboard and having your deck force stand by with lifebuoys?"

"Thank you, sir. I was about to give those orders, if you'll let me pass."

Queeg stepped aside. The exec went into the pilothouse, and passed the instructions over the loudspeaker. He began to manoeuvre the lurching ship toward the object.

"You'll be interested to know, gentlemen," Queeg said to the officers while Maryk manipulated engines and rudder, "that I was about to issue orders to ballast and head into the wind when Mr. Maryk committed his panic-stricken, criminal act. I had previously determined in my own mind that if the fleet guide had given no orders by 1000 I would act at my own discretion—"

Maryk said, "All right, Stilwell, head over to the right some more. Hard right—"

Queeg went on, "And I saw no reason for confiding my command decisions to Mr. Maryk, who seemed to be treating me like a feeble-minded idiot, and I'll say as much over the green table, and there'll be plenty of witnesses to—"

"Don't run 'em down, Stilwell! Rudder amidships!" Maryk stopped the engines and went to the loudspeaker. "Now throw over your buoys!"

The George Black had been thrown broadside to the wind and rudder had failed to bring it around. The survivors, streaked with broad smears of oil, some of them bleeding, were pulled aboard and taken to sick bay.

"We'll keep circling," said Maryk. He peered out at the sea, visible now for several hundred yards. "I think it's letting up some. Take him below, Bellison."

"I am resuming the conn, Mr. Maryk," said Queeg, "and we will drop the matter entirely until the storm has abated—"

Maryk turned wearily to the captain. "No, sir, I've got it. I respectfully ask you to lay below to your cabin. Contradictory orders will endanger the ship—"

"Are you putting me off my bridge, sir?"

"Yes, Captain."

U.S. Submarine to Exercise Navy Hunters

A United States Navy submarine is working with units of the Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy, in Juan de Fuca Strait, in exercises lasting until Tuesday.

U.S.S. Diodon, a visitor to this port two weeks ago, is based at San Diego, and works extensively with air and surface anti-submarine units of the U.S. Navy.

As the Canadian Navy has no submarines, it occasionally "borrows" one from the Royal Navy or the U.S. Navy.

Working with the sub are units of the Pacific Command's training fleet—H.M.S. Slough, Anigonish and Beacon Hill. Radar spotting of the submarine's "snorkel" will play a large part in the exercises.

Doukhobors Quit Island

Property at Hilliers for Sale
Believed Returning to Kootenays

The Vancouver Island Doukhobor colony at Hilliers, near Qualicum, is advertising its property for sale and members are believed planning to head back to the Kootenay district in the interior.

It was learned today the colony, established in 1946 in a reform movement by a portion of the Sons of Freedom sect, is now only populated by two or three families, comprising about 16 people. About 30 Doukhobors, who arrived at the colony during October, have left.

In recent years there has been a population in the colony of 60 to 70.

A sign advertising the 40 to 50 acres for sale has been posted in the local post office.

The colony was established by Doukhobors headed by Michael (The Archangel) Veregin, who was anxious to set up an orthodox community.

But his death nearly two years ago left the colony without effective leadership. The settlement's spirit went steadily downward until now, when his followers have apparently decided to abandon the colony.

Poor land, lacking irrigation, has plagued the Doukhobors' efforts to grow abundant crops. This also has contributed to their troubles.

"The Archangel" and his followers broke away from the radical group in their sect in the Kootenay district just after the Second World War, and settled at Hilliers.

The colony was well behaved, and Michael was instrumental in setting up a school for children in the colony. The school used the regular provincial education department curriculum—a radical departure from practices of the rest of the Doukhobors.

There were outbreaks of violence at Hilliers in 1948, but police did not blame the Doukhobors. They were inclined to accuse enemies of the Hilliers colony—other Doukhobors who committed the acts in an effort to make trouble for Michael and his new colony.

A school and community hall were destroyed by fire, and the Hilliers sect's own kitchen and store were burned.

Canada's War Effort Is Criticized

'Isolationism' Charged By Paul Douglas

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.,

Dec. 4 (CP)—Senator Paul Douglas (Dem., Illinois) has criticized what he called the failure of several United Nations countries to pull their weight in the Korean War.

He told a club meeting here that Australia, New Zealand and Canada are not carrying their share of the fighting. He recommended that a limited offensive be launched, and said many more troops are needed for such an operation.

Australia and New Zealand, he said, are "extremely isolationist." Canada, he said today when asked to amplify his reference, "tends to be isolationist."

In his speech Wednesday night, Douglas suggested that Canadians "measure their contribution in Korea in relation to the size and population" of their country.

He said Australia and New Zealand have only two battalions of troops between them on the Korean front.

Canada has a full infantry brigade in the 1st Commonwealth division, as well as three destroyers with U.N. naval forces and a squadron of transport planes in the Pacific airlift to Korea. All were committed early in the war.

May Visit B.C.

Crown Prince Akihito of Japan, shown in court ceremonial dress, will probably visit Canada as a state guest next spring, it was learned today by the Canadian Press. The visit will be during the 18-year-old heir presumptive's voyage to London to attend the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. He is scheduled to leave in March by steamship arriving at Vancouver. C.P.R. officials are prepared to place a private car at his disposal for the trip across the Dominion. Toronto and Ottawa certainly would be touched by the prince's party, which would then proceed to New York for embarkation on a trans-Atlantic liner.

New Meeting Scheduled in Rail Dispute

MONTREAL, Dec. 4 (CP)—The railways announced today their acceptance of an invitation to meet the unions here next Wednesday to discuss further their dispute over a pay raise for 144,000 non-operating railway workers.

The unions, consisting of 15 international and two national brotherhoods, already have announced they will attend the meeting, proposed by Labor Minister Gregg.

The unions last Saturday announced their rejection of the majority report of a conciliation board recommending a 16-cent-an-hour pay raise for the non-operating employees—those who don't actually run the trains. The unions sought 45 cents.

The railways accepted the 16-cent recommendation and immediately applied to the board of transport commissioners for a general freight rate increase to recoup part of the added cost to pay their bills.

Swiss Worried Over Fate of Climbers

NEW DELHI, Dec. 4 (AP)—Swiss legation officials today began to show signs of great concern over the prolonged delay in news of the outcome of the Swiss Everest expedition. One commented: "We are not making a joke over the fact we cannot tell you anything this time."

Legation officials said they had no information on persistent rumors here that a representative of the sponsoring Swiss Alpine Foundation in Zurich, Edward Feuz, is flying to Delhi to investigate the fate of the expedition.

The Swiss officials discount "unauthorized" reports attributed to Nepalese travellers that the expedition has completed the descent of Everest and is en route to the Nepalese capital of Kathmandu. Instead, they appear to be beginning to fear the worst.

The Swiss team began its climb on unconquered Mt. Everest, Oct. 6.

Cigarette Price War in Ottawa Hits Home-Growns

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (BUP)—Cigarette price-cutting spread here today as retailers sought to meet competition from American off-brands selling at 33 cents for a pack of 20.

Supermarkets throughout the Ottawa district were selling Canadian cigarettes at 36 cents a pack instead of the regular 39-cent price.

The price-cutting was started several days ago by one chain, and wholesalers predicted it would spread.

J. P. Duffy, supervisor of a grocery chain, said the cutback to 36 cents a pack left retailers without a profit but sales were soaring.

"We'll keep it up indefinitely," Duffy said.

Britain Plans Reduction In Arms Spending

Churchill Tells
House of Cutbacks

LONDON, Dec. 4 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced today that Britain intends to make some cuts in defense spending.

He told the House of Commons this would involve cancellation or modification of some arms contracts already placed. He stressed, however, that this "decision in no way implied any weakening in Her Majesty's government's determination... to take its full part in the effort of the North Atlantic alliance."

Churchill, reading a prepared statement on defense policy, said that last year defense cost Britain £1,462,000,000. The same amount of equipment this year will cost £1,650,000,000 and next year £1,800,000,000. Inflationary factors account for the rise.

The prime minister did not state how far the defense effort would be cut back. He did say, however: "We must prevent any substantial rise above this year's level of defense expenditure."

Churchill's statement was interpreted to mean that Britain's defense spending would remain more or less constant. Effects of inflation would merely result in a decreased amount of arms output.

Canucks Arrive At Seattle

BY STEPHEN SCOTT
Canadian Press Staff Writer
SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 4 (CP)—About 450 crack Canadian troops arrived today from more than a year on Korean battlefronts.

Most of them were members of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the first regular Canadian group to go to Korea.

Three bands, including a five-piece jazz band and the band of the Patricia's, greeted the ship as she berthed.

Most of the troops interviewed as they left the ship agreed the Canadian soldiers are the "best in Korea."

Former Vancouver Fire Chief Jumps From Ferry, Drowns

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 4 (BUP)—Former Vancouver Fire Chief A. E. Condon, about 65, jumped off the North Vancouver ferry Wednesday night and drowned in choppy, wind-swept Burrard Inlet.

Condon, forced to retire as fire chief within recent years due to ill-health, took off his coat at the railing, placed it on a bench and jumped. He was seen by passenger Allan Kidd who ran up to Condon and heard him mumble "Goodbye" as he leaped.

His body was recovered.

RECONCILIATION REMOTE

Windsors Unlikely to Attend Queen Elizabeth's Coronation

BY ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 3 (CP)—Prospects of a complete reconciliation between the Royal Family and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor appear as remote as they ever have been since the Duke abandoned the throne 16 years ago.

Recent speculation has suggested that the Windsors probably would be invited to the Coronation next June. This would mark the official introduction of the Duchess at court and complete the Duke's reconciliation with all members of the Royal Family.

But today a court spokesman said the big stumbling block still remains: The Duke wishes his wife to be received as a royal duchess, entitled to all the privileges of station—a curtsy, precedence and so on.

The difficulty is that the Duke's wife has never been created a royal duchess.

"Lot's of nickles, no dimes," says Herb Roy.

Tweedsmuir Timber Salvage Cost Probed

Government Engineers Investigate When Public Condemns Despoilation of Park

Government engineers are in the field to compute cost of removing all timber from the Tweedsmuir Park area to be flooded in Alcan's big development, Lands and Forests Minister Robert E. Bonner said today.

The move follows protests from north country residents who fear for the despoilation of the park's beauty and loss of valuable timber.

Engineers have been instructed to report by Feb. 20 so the facts can be placed before the Legislature.

"I want to get the complete facts," said Mr. Sommers. The minister's remarks came soon after Alcan vice-president McNeeley Du Bose announced his company will finance the removal of all "accessible, merchantable" timber from the area.

Mr. Sommers said this is a "minor step to the solution," but added it wouldn't go far towards doing anything for the aesthetic value.

All timber, not just merchantable timber, must be removed if the aesthetic value is to be retained—the main issue with northern residents who have been demanding complete timber clearing.

Results of the survey by government engineers will reveal the cost of such a project.

COMPANY POLICY
Mr. Du Bose made this announcement after a meeting Wednesday with Mr. Sommers.

"At the request of the minister of lands and forests, Alcan has nancing of practical loggers to extract such merchantable timber from the area to be flooded as can be done on a commercial basis."

He added that negotiations arranged to underwrite the firm have been going on for some time between his company and the logging outfit that has already removed some of the timber from the shores of Ootsa Lake.

The company is being guaranteed against loss by Alcan. The agreement between Alcan and the government does not require the company to remove timber.

The logging operations will go ahead as quickly as possible while the waters in the reservoir are gradually rising.

Majority of the timber involved is in the vicinity of Ootsa and Sail Lakes.

Resigns Post

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—President Truman's wage board chairman quit his job today in protest over the President's approval of a wage boost for coal miners beyond the recommendations of all top defense agency officials.

Archibald Cox, chairman of the wage stabilization board, waited overnight to resign. He made no formal statement, but told a reporter the White House might have something to say later today.

The Truman action, while counter to recommendations of his stabilization lieutenants, assured a year of peace in the coal mines.

10-Cent Pay Phones Among Increases

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (CP)—The board of transport commissioners today authorized higher rates for the British Columbia Telephone Company but cut down sharply on the company's proposed increases for local service.

The company got permission to boost long-distance tolls by an average 12.2 per cent and to double the pay-phone charge to 10 cents. Local business and private phone rates will go up an average of about 5 per cent.

The increases are temporary, subject to review when the board hears early next year a company application involving further increases.

In this "interim" case, the company asked for increases on a scale to gross it $2,451,000 a year. The board today awarded it 65 per cent of that, or about $1,500,000.

TELEPHONE RATE PAY BOOST IN BRIEF

1. Long distance calls upped average of 12.2%.

Example	Present Station to Station	New Station to Station	Present Person to Person	New Person to Person
Vancouver	.90	1.00	1.25	1.40
Seattle	.60	.60	.90	.95
Duncan	.30	.35	.40	.50
Nanaimo	.55	.65	.75	.90
Penticton	1.70	1.75	2.20	2.45
Nelson	2.15	2.15	2.85	3.00

2. Local business and private phone rates boosted average of about 5 per cent, but varying according to type of service.

3. Pay phone local calls jumped from 5 to 10 cents.

4. Effective date not settled but company empowered to make increases on three days' notice.

The board granted long-distance and pay-phone increases as asked by the company at a hearing here late last month, but pending the fuller hearings in the new year scaled down what it had asked for on local private, business and semi-public phones.

The company got about 35 per cent of what it sought on private and business local service, it was estimated. It got about 50 per cent of proposed increases on semi-public phones.

Municipalities Opposed Increase

The application was opposed to provide a potential surplus of around $425,000 a year. The money would enable it to sell common stock needed to finance expansion and improvement next year.

The board, in telling the company it could put increases into effect on three days' notice, said the newly-authorized rates should provide enough revenue "with something to spare" to meet the company's most urgent requirements.

Mayor Would Continue To Fight Increases

Mayor Claude Harrison today deplored granting of interim rate increases to the B.C. Telephone Co. and urged City Council to fight them at the next board of transport commissioners' hearing.

"The rates are too high," the mayor said flatly. "They should be protested and fought out, when the permanent increase is sought."

He will recommend such action to the next council meeting Dec. 18.

NO COMPETITION
"People are beginning to hold the line on costs—you can't get a better example than our own civic workers," he said. "With that good example, we are now facing increased costs in a utility that has no competition in this city."

"While we in the west are trying to hold the line of expense and are beginning to succeed this seems to indicate the east is not."

Mayor Harrison said he could not "understand" the increase and wants to see reasons for judgment.

He emphasized that the city should not "allow the matter to drop" but press it when the board of transport commissioners meet to hear the application for a permanent increase, which follows the interim boost application.

AWAIT REPORT
Meanwhile, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce is waiting to hear from a special committee organized by the B.C. chamber, the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Vancouver city

The last session of two months of public hearings was held here Wednesday.

The report of chairman H. H. Stevens and commissioners George Home and Dean Cecil Swanson is to be in the hands of Attorney-General Robert Bonner by the end of this month.

The Attorney-General has said a new liquor code, based on the commission's recommendations, will be presented to the legislature session opening Feb. 3. (See Story Page 3)

BOY WHO WASN'T ALLOWED TO CROSS STREET IS KILLED

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (BUP)—A six-year-old boy who was teased by his school mates because he wasn't allowed to cross the street alone was killed by a car making his first lone crossing.

Teddy Archibald died in a hospital Wednesday shortly after being struck by a car driven by pilot Albert E. Collard, 22, at a busy intersection.

Police said Collard told them the boy was "chased" onto the street and he couldn't avoid hitting the youngster as he ran from in front of a parked car.

The child's mother, Mrs. William M. Archibald, said "I always took Teddy across the street. But today I let him go alone because other children at the school were laughing at him."

Ontario Authorities Probe Girl's Death

BARRIE, Ont., Dec. 4 (BUP)—

An inquest was ordered today into the death of a 19-year-old diabetic girl who abandoned insulin treatments after a preacher told her to "pray to God" to get well.

M.P. Sees West Indies 11th Province

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (BUP)—An East Coast Conservative said in the Commons Wednesday night that the West Indies should become Canada's 11th province to prevent the United States from moving into the British-owned islands.

"I believe the United States has her eyes on the West Indies at the present time," said A. J. Brooks (P.C., Royal).

Brooks said recent reports indicated that the West Indies were at "loose ends" and were "looking around for some country or some place in which they can find more security."

"My opinion is that the British West Indies could well become, both politically and economically, a part of this great country of ours," Brooks said.

"I should like to see the day come when the West Indies is (a part of Canada) because I believe it would be to the great advantage of the people of Canada if the Indies were the 11th province of this Dominion."

FINAL BULLETINS

J. Norris, Grain, Sport Tycoon Dead

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP)—James Norris, 74, owner of the Detroit Red Wings hockey team, died today in Passavant Hospital.

Canadian born, Norris, prominent for many years in hockey, was president of the Norris Grain Company, a Chicago brokerage firm.

His son, James D. Norris, is president of the International Boxing Club.

Norris was stricken Tuesday with a heart ailment.

Jail-Break at Prince George

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., Dec. 4 (BUP)—Police at Prince George said today that four men had escaped from the city jail. The R.C.M.P. immediately set up road blocks throughout the Prince George area.

The men were identified as Lorne McQuarrie, Douglas Johnson, Terence Talbot and Conley Hall.

The men saved their way through inch-thick bars, police said.

France Boycotts U.N. Tunisia Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 4 (AP)—France today boycotted the opening of the United Nations debate on demands for independence for Tunisia.

The boycott was announced in a letter to the U.N. political committee. France's seats were vacant. France also declared she will refuse to attend debates on Morocco.

$3,000,000 Claim Must Be Heard

VANCOUVER, Dec. 4 (CP)—Mr. Justice A. M. Manson in Supreme Court today refused to strike out the $3,000,000 claim of Mrs. Netta Bell of Calgary and her two children against United Distillers of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Justice Manson said the action is founded on allegations of fraudulent conspiracy, fraud, falsification of books and deceit on the part of the defendants, Isadore Klein, Albert McLennan and George Norgan, all of Vancouver.

They are U.D.L. directors.

2 Dead, 5 Wounded in Casualty List

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (BUP)—The army today listed two Canadian soldiers killed and five wounded in Korean fighting. One B.C. man, Pte. C. W. Bock of Oliver, was among the wounded.

It was the 155th official casualty report by the army since Canadians went into action in Korea.

Four-Way Mayoralty Race in Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Dec. 4—Four men, all with previous mayoralty or aldermanic experience, will contest the post of mayor here Dec. 11.

They are Victor B. Harrison and George Muir, both former mayors, and Alderman John Thompson and George Addison, present members of the city council. Mayor Earle C. Westwood resigned Nov. 24 for reasons of business and health.

Four council seats will be contested by 13 candidates.

Doukhobors Quit Island

Believed Returning to Kootenays;
Property at Hilliers for Sale

The Vancouver Island Doukhobor colony at Hilliers, near Qualicum, is advertising its property for sale and members are believed planning to head back to the Kootenay district in the interior.

It was learned today the colony, established in 1946 in a reform movement by a portion of the Sons of Freedom sect, is now only populated by two or three families, comprising about 16 people. About 30 Doukhobors, who arrived at the colony during October, have left.

In recent years there has been a population in the colony of 60 to 70.

A sign advertising the 40 to 50 acres for sale has been posted in the local post office.

The colony was established by Doukhobors headed by Michael (The Archangel) Veregin, who was anxious to set up an orthodox community.

But his death nearly two years ago left the colony without effective leadership. The settlement's spirit went steadily downward until now, when his followers have apparently decided to abandon the colony.

Poor land, lacking irrigation, has plagued the Doukhobors' efforts to grow abundant crops. This also has contributed to their troubles.

"The Archangel" and his followers broke away from the radical group in their sect in the Kootenay district just after the Second World War, and settled at Hilliers.

The colony was well behaved, setting up a school for children in the colony. The school used the regular provincial education department curriculum—a radical departure from practices of the rest of the Doukhobors.

There were outbreaks of violence at Hilliers in 1948, but police did not blame the killers Doukhobors. They were inclined to accuse enemies of the Hilliers colony—other Doukhobors who committed the acts in an effort to make trouble for Michael and his new colony.

A school and community hall were destroyed by fire, and the Hilliers sect's own kitchen and store were burned.

AUTO WORKER CHIEF GIVEN BIG MAJORITY

Reuther Fills
Murray's Job

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 4 (AP)—The C.I.O. elected Walter Reuther, 45-year-old head of the United Auto Workers' Union, as the labor organization's president.

The balloting was announced as 3,079,181 votes for Reuther and 2,613,103 for Allan Haywood, 64-year-old C.I.O. executive vice-president.

Reuther was chosen to succeed Philip Murray, the organization's chief for a dozen years until his death last month.

RECONCILIATION REMOTE

Windsors Unlikely to Attend Queen Elizabeth's Coronation

BY ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 3 (CP)—Prospects of a complete reconciliation between the Royal Family and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor appear as remote as they ever have been since the Duke abandoned the throne 16 years ago.

Recent speculation has suggested that the Windsors probably would be invited to the Coronation next June. This would mark the official introduction of the Duchess at court and complete the Duke's reconciliation with all members of the Royal Family.

But today a court spokesman said the big stumbling block still remains. The Duke wishes his wife to be received as a royal duchess, entitled to all the privileges of station—a curtsy, precedence and so on.

The difficulty is that the Duke's wife has never been created a royal duchess.

This is constitutionally necessary. For instance, when the late King George VI, as Duke of York, married the present Queen Mother Elizabeth, King George V issued a proclamation giving his daughter-in-law the style and titles of a royal duchess and raising her to equal status with her husband.

Thus it would appear that the Duke would have to change his mind about the Duchess, an American divorcee, being received on equal terms with royalty.

One British newspaper, the Weekly News, says flatly today: "Though there is no question of stopping the Duke from exercising his undoubted right to be present at the Coronation, the Queen has let it be known that the presence of the Duchess of Windsor would not be welcomed."

The Weekly News is published in Dundee and serves the north of Scotland. It frequently is authoritative on questions affecting royalty.

"Lot's of nickles, no dimes," says Herb Roy.

Mayors to Ask Bigger Share of Tax Yield

MONTREAL, Dec. 4 (CP)—Members of the executive of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities today demanded wider distribution of taxes to municipalities and said a brief to that effect will be presented to the federal cabinet Friday.

The executive is holding a two-day meeting here before going to Ottawa to meet Acting Prime Minister Howe and the cabinet.

Mayor A. J. Mason of Springfield, N.S., president of the Federation, attacked the government for centralizing powers so that municipalities felt like "beggars living on grants from some government over which we have not enough authority."

Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton said the municipalities are "doing more jobs and we need more money." The municipal government faced increased responsibilities in education, health and welfare.

Alderman George C. Miller, head of Vancouver's finance committee, said there has been no redistribution of tax field since confederation.

Canucks At Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 4 (CP)—About 450 crack Canadian troops arrived today from more than a year on Korean battlefronts.

Most of them were members of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the first regular Canadian group to go to Korea.

Board Scales Down Local Service Hike

OTTAWA, Dec. 4 (CP)—The board of transport commissioners today authorized higher rates for the British Columbia Telephone Company but cut down sharply on the company's proposed increases for local service.

The company got permission to boost long-distance tolls by an average 12.2 per cent and to double the pay-phone charge to 10 cents. Local business and private phone rates will go up an average of about 5 per cent. The increases are temporary, it 65 per cent of that, or about $1,500,000.

TELEPHONE RATE PAY BOOST IN BRIEF

1. Long distance calls upped average of 12.2%.
Example	Present Station to Station	New St. to St.	Percent Person to Person
Vancouver	.90	1.00	1.25
Seattle	.60	.60	.90
Duncan	.30	.35	.40
Nanaimo	.55	.65	.75
Penticton	1.70	1.75	2.20
Nelson	2.15	2.15	2.85

2. Local business and private phone rates boosted average of about 5 per cent, but varying according to type of service.

3. Pay phone local calls jumped from 5 to 10 cents.

4. Effective date not settled but company empowered to make increases on three days' notice.

The board granted long-distance and pay-phone increases as asked by the company at a hearing here late last month, but pending the fuller hearings in the new year scaled down what it had asked for on local private, business and semi-public phones. The company got about 35 per cent of what it sought on private and business local service, it was estimated. It got about 50 per cent of proposed increases on semi-public phones.

The local increases vary widely. The lowest is 10 cents per month, which the board substituted for proposals between 15 and 25 cents. At the other end of the scale, it allowed $3.05 of the maximum proposed boost of $6.60.

The company asked initially for increases that would give it a total of $2,959,000 a year. For the interim increase, it reduced this amount to $2,451,000.

The board, in telling the company it could put increases into effect on "three days' notice," said the newly-authorized rates should provide enough revenue "with something to spare" to meet the company's most urgent requirements.

Mayor Would Continue To Fight Increases

Mayor Claude Harrison today deplored granting of interim rate increases to the B.C. Telephone Co. and urged City Council to fight them at the next board of transport commissioners' hearing.

"The rates are too high," the mayor said flatly. "They should be protested and fought out, when the permanent increase is sought."

He will recommend such action to the next council meeting Dec. 18.

NO COMPETITION

"People are beginning to hold the line on costs—you can't get a better example than our own civic workers," he said. "With that good example, we are now facing increased costs in a utility that has no competition in this city."

"While we in the west are trying to hold the line of expenses and are beginning to succeed this seems to indicate the east is not."

Mayor Harrison said he could not "understand" the increase and wants to see reasons for judgment.

He emphasized that the city should not "allow the matter to drop" but press it when the board of transport commissioners meets to hear the application for a permanent increase, which follows the interim boost application.

Vancouver Stocks Closing Prices

Stocks moved in a narrow range in light trading on Vancouver Exchange in the final session today.

Price changes in oils and mines were fractional, mostly on the upside. Industrial issues were noticeably firmer. Canadian Western Lumber traded at $8.75.

Western Tungsten, stronger, sold at $4. Pacific Nickel and Quatsino were unchanged.
